Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men

The AMERICAN announces today its great united Christmas celebration. It asks its readers to join in bringing Christmas happiness to the others all about us in this community who otherwise would be without Christmas cheer.

Each reader of the AMERICAN and his friends and neighbors are asked to "Give a basket." The AMERICAN will see that these baskets containing a Christmas dinner for a family are distributed to needy people. Readers are requested to send in names of those whom they know would appreciate a Christmas basket.

This will be only one feature of the big Christmas celebration which the AMERICAN has planned. There is to be a big Christmas tree for the children with Santa Claus, who will distribute warm things to wear and candy and toys.

For the grown-ups there will be a celebration, with music and singing. Boston and New England should spend a happy Christmas and the AMERICAN desires to do its share toward bringing Christmas good cheer and happiness to everyone.

Doctors Say Mildred Sullivan Was Poisoned

ARMIES FIGHT IN FLOOD

MORPHINE FOUND IN AUTOPSY

HOULTON, Me., Nov. 16.—That Mildred Leah Sullivan, 17-year-old victim of the Aroostook County mystery, died from an overdose of morphine, administered with homicidal intent, is charged in the official finding following an autopsy on the girl's body, according to information given the AMERICAN today.

The poison was given in hypodermic form, according to the charge, the quantity has not been determined, but the theory is that it was a half grain or more.

This conclusion was reached by the state at the autopsy. It was not necessary to await chemical analysis, physical symptoms, it is reported, convinced Medical Examiners Boone and Jackson.

The viscera was forwarded to Bowdoin College to be examined by either Professor Whittier or Knight. The report of that test will not be made until the trial, nor will the autopsy report, which is said to contain details of a shocking nature.

But the AMERICAN correspondent has learned that the autopsy revealed all that the prosecution wanted to learn, and that analysis of the organs was for corroboration and to determine the precise amount of morphine.

The autopsy, it is reported, revealed that Mildred Sullivan's body was brutally handled. The autopsy report, jealously guarded, is said to be astounding. Even the officiating surgeons were appalled.

Grewsome revelations are promised at the trial, which may not be reached until late this month or early in December. County Attorney Archibald, with a docket of 1,500 cases to wade through, will present Mildred Sullivan's case to the Aroostook County Grand Jury first and he expects that it may take until the end of the week to put in the evidence. Yet he plans on using only part of his witnesses, which are said to number fifty or more all told.

EXPECT OTHER ARRESTS.

In his attempt to get true bills against Dr. Dudley and Alice Pelletier, Katherine Michaud and Perley Pelletier, the alleged seventeen-year-old grave digger, and possibly others, County Attorney Archibald feels that he will only have to prove a prima facie case.

Evidence in the possession of the State is said to lift the case above the average homicide. Other arrests are looked for hourly, the whole region being at fever heat. Feeling runs high. Next to the medical discoveries, the most important developments today were details of line of how the State used dictagraphs and detectives at the Pelletier home in Presque Isle for weeks, and the declaration of Fred Melville of that town, uncle of Mildred Sullivan, that Dr. Dudley told him he would blow his brains out before he would face a jury.

BRITISH WARSHIPS CRIPPLED

POPE BENEDICT NAMES FOUR CAUSES OF WAR

ROME, Nov. 16.—Four of the chief causes leading up to the great war in Europe are held by Pope Benedict XV. to be these:

Lack of mutual and sincere love among men; contempt of authority; injustice on the part of one class of the people against another, and the consideration of material welfare as the sole object of human activity in defiance of spiritual obligations.

These are contained in the annual papal encyclical which was published today by the Pope. The Pope urges in the most sincere phrases that peace be restored among the warring nations of Europe without any further delay.

Germans Admit Loss to Date Is 535,000

LONDON, Nov. 16.—A Chronicle dispatch from Copenhagen says the seventy-fifth list of Prussian casualties just issued contains the names of 10,500. The total casualties reported to date is 535,000.

Protest Acts of the Belligerants

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 16.—A protest from the Scandinavian governments concerning various measures taken by the belligerent powers to prevent the navigation and trade of neutral states has been sent to England, France, Russia and Germany.

ARTILLERY DUEL IN FLANDERS AS STORM RAGES

A picture of war at its worst is presented in the news from the scene of the great Franco-Belgian battle today. A raging blizzard is sweeping over Flanders, where the fighting is most violent, and the suffering from exposure among the soldiers of the contending armies is described as terrible.

The heavy rains, coupled with the dike-cutting operations of the Belgians, have inundated more than 1,200 square miles of the low-lying country north and south of the Yser river and the Yser canal.

It is also reported that the floods have cut off a portion of the German army around Dixmude, which place is now officially admitted to be in the hands of the invaders.

Guns and ammunition wagons, abandoned by the Germans, lie embedded in the inundated district, together with countless corpses, dispatches say.

The Germans have been washed out of their trenches in several places, says an eye witness who has just returned to Paris from the front, but they continue to send an occasional shell to the French trenches.

It is not probable that the Germans will make further attempts in this section of the front, but a fierce effort is to be expected from Dixmude to Arras as soon as the German troops have recovered from their tremendous exertions of last week and new men can be brought up to fill the gaps in the ranks.

3 BRITISH WARSHIPS DISABLED.

A dispatch from Geneva to Berlin reports that the British warships Falcon, Brilliant and Rinaldo have been disabled by German guns on the Belgian coast. The Brilliant is a protected cruiser of 3,600 tons; the Falcon a torpedo boat destroyer of 576 tons displacement, and the Rinaldo a sloop of 980 tons.

Destruction of an entire regiment of German troops in Belgium is announced in the official statement issued at Paris at 2 o'clock this afternoon. A German regiment numbers 3,000 men.

At the time of the bombardment of the German land forces by British warships, several days ago, Berlin officially announced that three British ships had been damaged by the fire of the German big guns. Presumably these were the boats mentioned in the Geneva dispatches.

Reports that the English battleship Canopus had met with disaster were scouted by Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, in replying to questions put to him in the House of Commons this afternoon. Mr. Churchill declared that he believed the Canopus to be safe.

TAKE UP SPY ACCUSATION AT WASHINGTON

Adolph J. Post, a cousin of Reinhold Anton Berrenburg, the Boston-born man, held in England as a spy, has received notice from Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Peters that the State Department is working on the case. Similar assurances have come from the office of Mayor Curley.

Berrenberg, who was in Germany when the war began and who made his way, via Paris, to London, was arrested as a spy, but told claim to American citizenship. He was given until November 20 to prove this citizenship. His relatives here received an appeal from him.

Berrenberg's Boston birth makes him an American citizen.

Berrenberg's relatives here, in view of the fate of Carl Hans Lody who was shot as a spy in the Tower of London, are anxious for assurance of his safety. They feel sure that at worst he will be imprisoned.

Dispatches from England today told of the arrest of another alleged spy with an American passport. He passed under the names of Horgi, von der Goltz, and Bridgeman Taylor. He had an American passport issued under the latter name.

Say U. S. Wireless Betrayed British

TOKIO, Nov. 16.—The first allegation that the United States has failed to live up to the standard of neutrality is set is made in a dispatch from Kobe today, which declares the German cruiser Emden was enabled to find and sink the steamer Troylus as the result of a wireless dispatch sent from Manila. The information was secured by a German merchant in Kobe, who has been arrested and will be tried as a spy.

Jap Warships Off Peruvian Coast

CALLAO, Peru, Nov. 16.—The captain of a steamer that arrived here today reported that he had seen the Japanese battleship Iizuen and cruiser Asama about 200 miles west of the Peruvian coast. They are believed to be hunting the German wireless that recently defeated a British squadron.

American's 'Beat' On Audacious Big Exclusive of War

The AMERICAN'S forty-eight-hour "beat" with the news of the sinking of the Audacious stands out as the one big newspaper exclusive of the war. It was confirmed in yesterday's Sunday AMERICAN by the exclusive photograph taken from the Olympic. Every detail in the stories in today's morning papers verifying the AMERICAN'S news is proved by the AMERICAN'S photograph.

One might ask, "How could the Olympic have come near enough for a photograph to be taken?" Hugh Griffiths, one of the bandsmen on the Olympic, who arrived in New York yesterday, said: "Captain Haddock of the Olympic backed his liner until her stern almost overhung the bow of the battleship. You would have thought you could have stepped from one ship to the other."

James Rupert Reames, leader of the orchestra on the Olympic, who arrived in New York yesterday, says: "We could see the big boat breaking over her quarterdeck." This is shown in the photograph as marked by the arrow (No. 2).

CARRANZA AND VILLA AGREE TO LEAVE MEXICO

AGUASCALIENTES, Mexico, Nov. 16.—Everything points to the early restoration of peace in Mexico and the inauguration of the government formed by the convention in the city of Mexico. Provisional President Gutierrez has received a telegram from General Carranza announcing that he would at once retire and turn over the government, the only condition being that General Villa also retire and leave Mexico. The proposition was also placed before General Villa and his official family, complete acquiescence and his willingness to leave the country at once.

General Gutierrez is arranging to leave for Mexico City immediately to complete the transfer of the government.

Many of the delegates to the convention do not take kindly to the idea of General Villa's exile even though it is satisfactory. These men hold that Villa is the one man capable of restoring peace in the republic and his prestige is needed in the establishment of a government that will have the respect and support of all factions.

RUSSIAN ARMY IS REPULSED BY TURKS

many inquiries were made as to why the Canopus had not been with the Good Hop and Monmouth.

Twenty-five thousand Indian troops—cavalry and artillery—passed through Paris today from Marseilles to the front. They included the cream of the British Empire's mounted forces in India. The Indians, who arrived in Marseilles on twelve transports on Thursday, were given a day to get rid of their "sea legs" after having spent twenty-three days upon the water during the long voyage from Bombay.

One of the most spectacular features of the gigantic battle, which began sixty-five days ago, is a series of artillery duelling fought over the flooded area of Belgium. Heavy guns, manned by French and Germans, are firing at each other across the inland sea.

The Germans are still fighting valiantly, but ineffectually to flank their wedge which was driven into their lines at Yser. They have been hurling the flower of their picked troops against it in violent bayonet charges, but the allied ranks have held firm.

Official dispatches from Petrograd announce that Soldau has been recaptured by the Russians. The Austro-German armies are stubbornly resisting the Russian advances on Cracow, but the Russian War Office says its capture cannot be delayed more than a few days.

RUSSIANS REPULSED BY TURKS.

The Russian troops that have invaded Turkish Armenia have been compelled to retire. This is admitted in a dispatch from Petrograd from the Governor General of the Transcaucasia. In his message, sent from Tiflis, he states that the Turkish troops have been heavily reinforced. As the advance guards of the Russians retire the Turks are pressing the pursuit. The Turkish War Office announces that the defeat of the Russians is complete.

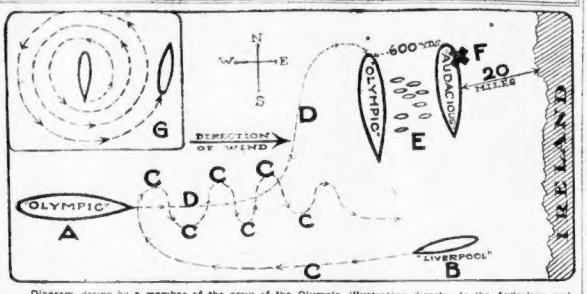
A French warship bombarded Foggia (Nova Plodka) the Dedjournos, two Turkish towns on the coast of Asia Minor, northwest of Smyrna, on Monday. Both towns were set on fire, according to information received at the Turkish legation in Athens, whose officials declare neither of the towns was fortified.

Advices from Turkish sources report that several British vessels have been sunk in the Persian gulf, by Turkish river boats.

Field Marshal Potiorek, commander of the Austrian troops operating in the southern war theatre, reports under date of Sunday that the Servians' first line of defence west of Valjevo has been successfully stormed by his troops and that the Servians have retreated to their second line.

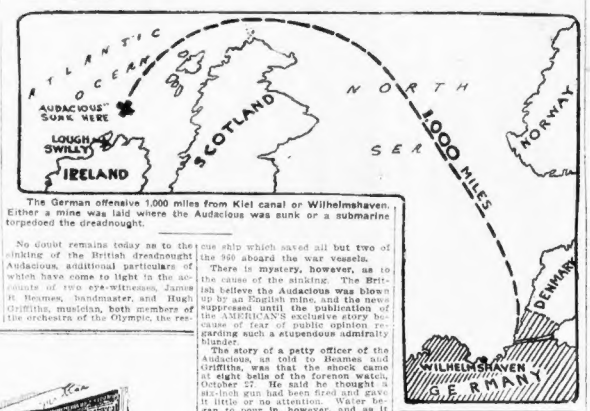
An unofficial message from Buda Pest reports that Austrian troops have captured Obrevcovce, Servia, by storm. Obrevcovce is south o fthe Save River and southwest of Belgrade.

SINKING OF AUDACIOUS DUE TO BRITISH BLUNDER



Diagram, drawn by a member of the crew of the Olympic, illustrating disaster to the Audacious and showing how her crew was rescued.

A—Olympic gets call to aid the Audacious and starts to the rescue. B—British cruiser Liverpool rushes to guard the Olympic. C—C—C—Cruiser Liverpool gets in front of the Olympic and starts on a zig-zag course to protect the great liner from mines or submarines. D—Course of the Olympic until she is within 600 yards of the Audacious, where she halts to windward and sends out her small boats. E—Olympic boats transfer all but 200 of the crew of the Audacious and take them to the Liverpool and other boats. F—The heavy cross shows exact position of damage done by mine or torpedo. G—This separate diagram shows how the captain of the Audacious circled his ship after the accident in order to make it list to starboard and lift the stern port quarter as far out of water as possible.



The German offensive 1,000 miles from Kiel canal or Wilhelmshaven. Either a mine was laid where the Audacious was sunk or a submarine torpedoed the dreadnought.

No doubt remains today as to the sinking of the British dreadnought Audacious, additional particulars of which have come to light in the accounts of two eye-witnesses, James R. Beames, bandmaster, and Hugh Griffiths, musician, both members of the orchestra of the Olympic, the rescue ship which saved all but two of the 960 aboard the war vessels.

There is mystery, however, as to the cause of the sinking. The British believe the Audacious was blown up by an English mine, and the news suppressed until the publication of the AMERICAN'S exclusive story because of fear of public opinion regarding such a stupendous admiralty blunder.

The story of a petty officer of the Audacious, as told to Beames and Griffiths, was that the shock came at eight bells of the forenoon watch, October 27. He said he thought a six-inch gun had been fired and gave it little or no attention. Water began to pour in, however, and as it did he heard the cry, "Torpedoed on port side! Close all water-tight doors."

All hands were ordered on deck. The discipline was perfect, according to the petty officer's story. The firemen from the fires on the starboard side and this, together with the flood of cold water rushing into the firerom on the port side, was assumed to be the reason why the engines of the dreadnought were unable to drive her into shoal water.

THOUGHT TORPEDOED.

One of the new features of the loss of the Audacious, according to statements made on the New York, on which Beames and Griffiths arrived, was that the battleship was steaming in squadron when hit by a mine and that immediately her companions of the super-dreadnought class steamed away in conformity with the Admiralty's orders.

The impression was that she had been torpedoed, it was said, and the other big war craft sought to escape a similar fate by getting out of the danger zone as quickly as possible.

The story of Beames, who was helped out from time to time by Griffiths, was substantially as follows:

"We sighted land at 10 a. m. on Tuesday, October 27. The land was Tory Island. An hour later we came below, when one of the stewards came to our quarters and said: 'You'd better get up on deck and see those two lovely warships.'

"As soon as the steward told us about the warships we ran up on deck. The day was dark and cloudy, and a stiff westerly gale was blowing. Off our starboard side we saw a big battleship down by the stern and heavy seas breaking over her.

"She was flying the distress signal.

"As we approached, the other warship, which we learned later was the cruiser Liverpool, came over to us and at high speed crossed our bows. Hardly had she crossed when she turned and recrossed and kept up this sort of serpentine movement for a half-hour.

"It was said later this fine performance was to clear the way for the White Star ship, which at that time was the only agent in those waters capable of towing the Audacious to a shoal haven.

"It was decided the Liverpool could better risk hitting a mine than could the Olympic, which was later to tow the Audacious, and for this reason the Liverpool made her serpentine manoeuvre ahead of the Olympic as a feeler for mines.

"Hardly had the Liverpool cut across our bow when the order was given to man the lifeboats. Before this a call had been issued for volunteers. More answered than the boats could accommodate.

"The seas were high and the men in the Olympic's lifeboats had a hard pull. It took them twenty minutes to get over to the Audacious, which lay about 500 yards away. We plainly could see the crew at quarters.

"They were the calmest body of men I have ever seen. The discipline was perfect. Through the binoculars the captain of the Audacious was seen walking up and down the deck calmly with his hands behind his back.

SHIP BLOWN UP.

"The Olympic dropped anchor off Lough Swilly at 8 p. m. An hour later a tremendous flash lighted up the entire ship. We rushed to deck and could see for fully twenty seconds afterward burning fragments shooting upward from the place where they had left the Audacious.

"Then there came a roar. It sounded, they said, as if some mammoth boiler were letting off steam. It stopped as suddenly as it commenced.

"That was the end of the Audacious. Everyone on board had been taken off and the Liverpool had put the finishing touch to the hunted mine had begun in the forenoon."

As a reason for destroying the Audacious, it was said that the battleship was hopelessly damaged, and that if not blown up she would become a menace to navigation.

GERMAN.

German Coat of Arms.

BERLIN, Nov. 16.—The fighting east of the coast is less violent. This is probably due to the severe weather. Sleet and snow are being driven by an icy wind until a veritable blizzard has resulted.

The German soldiers are well equipped for the Winter campaign and their offensive will be resumed as soon as weather conditions permit.

Our line has been maintained and we have made small gains at various points. The enemy has made repeated attempts to retake St. Eloy, south of Dixmude, but these have been repulsed with considerable loss to the attacking forces. No decisive result has been attained.

Farther east the weather conditions are better and our offensive in the Argonne continues.

FRENCH.

French Coat of Arms.

PARIS, Nov. 16.—Along the Yser Canal from Nieuport as far as the approaches of Dixmude there was yesterday nothing but a simple cannonade. New inundations have happened all along the territory to the south of Dixmude, and the terrain is actually submerged for five kilometers (three miles) to the north of Bixschoote.

The forces of the enemy which tried to cross the canal between the region of Dixmude and the region of Bixschoote were repulsed beyond the bridges. One entire German regiment was destroyed at the south of Bixschoote.

To the southeast of Ypres two other attacks by the Germans were repulsed. We have taken the offensive and in our turn have recaptured some points of support which had been taken by the enemy.

For the last few days, between the Lys and the Oise, there have been only some minor operations by small units and we have made slight progress in our works of approach.

In the region of the Aisne and in the district of Champagne only cannonades without result have occurred. In the Argonne region the Germans have made another attack upon St. Hubert without success.

In the region of St. Mihiel the enemy has failed in a surprise attack in the forest of Apremont.

In the Vosges there is little activity.

RUSSIAN.

Russian Coat of Arms.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 16.—After a series of engagements in the region of Kopprikot, our advance guard came into contact with the forces of the enemy. As a result of heavy reinforcements received by the Turks from Chynskala, Erserum and Trebizond, our advance guards are retiring, still fighting as they withdraw to the positions designated by their commander.

The attempts made by the Turks to regain Khanessouk pass after we captured it have been repulsed. The main Russian forces have not been seriously engaged yet.

SERVIAN.

NISH, Servia, Nov. 16.—Because of the numerical superiority of the enemy's troops which entered Servian territory, the Servians gradually retired in order to give battle under the most favorable circumstances. That accounts for the Servian evacuation of Petsko, Zavlica and Kotselevo.

Says Germany's Goal Is the Suez Canal

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Roland G. Usher, author of "Pan Germanism," declares that the present aim of Germany is to strike at the Suez Canal. Egypt, he declares, is the vulnerable spot of the British empire, as its conquest will cut off India and cripple its food supply. The great Turkish army now marching on Cairo, he says, has been trained for years by German officers for this eventuality. It is armed with rifles and machine guns, with field artillery especially constructed at the great Krupp works for service on the sands of Egypt.

PORTERS RUNNING PULLMANS ON B. & M.

For several weeks complaints have been coming into the office of the AMERICAN that conductors had been taken off the Pullman cars on the Boston & Maine system and that the cars were being run with porters in charge.

Those complaints have come from two sources—from the public who use the Pullmans and from the conductors who were retired.

Investigation by this newspaper brought to light an interesting railroad story.

The AMERICAN found that when the battering ram of public opinion had smashed the Morgan grip on the New Haven and Boston & Maine Railroads and Morris McDonald was brought down from Portland to become president of the Boston & Maine, among the first things Mr. McDonald noticed was the absence of Pullman conductors from the Pullman cars.

President McDonald looked into the Pullman contract and found that Section 3 obliged the Pullman Company to furnish its cars, and each car with "such help as may be NECESSARY."

"See here, this has got to stop," said President McDonald one day to the Pullman management. "It is not necessary that each train carrying one or more Pullman cars has a conductor, as well as a porter in charge. I insist that you live up to the spirit of your contract with the Boston & Maine Railroad."

The Pullman people heeded Mr. McDonald. The conductors were assigned to the cars.

But directly the busy season was over, the Pullman Company sought to take off the conductors.

Mr. McDonald refused to listen to any such proposition.

"That won't do," said Mr. McDonald. "It is just as necessary to carry five passengers in your cars safely and comfortably as it is to carry fifty. I want those conductors continued." Your contract with us is plain. You must provide such help on each car as is necessary. A conductor with each train whether it carries one or ten Pullman cars is necessary."

NERVE AILMENTS ARE RECOGNIZED AS GRAVE MENACE

There is a very definite relation between nervous debility and weakness in the consistency of the blood. When the nerves get out of order neither the red nor the white corpuscles perform with the necessary activity. Sufficient oxygen is not carried to every portion of the body for conservation of nature's energy and the invading forces in the form of disease germs can easily obtain admittance.

This is why nervous debility makes people feel weak and run down and also why ill spoken them suffer so many different pains.

Tona Vita not only relieves the brain, but it also helps to form blood, rich in all its necessary qualities.

Tona Vita has been particularly successful in all cases of nervous debility, which should be of great help to any one of the following symptoms: Broken and restless sleep, aches or fullness after eating, pains in the back, drowsiness, heavy feeling about the bowels, dizziness, confused feeling of being tired, loss of appetite or a general run-down feeling.

Tona Vita can be obtained at any of the leading drug stores in Boston.

MISS MARY CURTIS of Rutland square, who is suing Arthur W. Stedman, Back Bay clubman, for $50,000 for alleged breach of promise.

STEDMAN, SUED IN HEART CASE, GIVES SELF UP

Arthur W. Stedman, fifty-nine years old, a member of one of Boston's most prominent families, and connected with many of Boston's exclusive clubs, who is being sued by Miss Mary Curtis of No. 19 West Rutland square, South End, for $50,000, alleging breach of promise, today surrendered himself to Deputy Sheriff J. H. Feeney, who has been looking for him with a mesne process writ.

He was arraigned before Judge Crosby in the Municipal Court. The writ was issued last Wednesday when Miss Curtis filed an affidavit, though his counsel, Samuel Carver, which stated that she believed that Mr. Stedman was about to leave the State.

At the hearing before Judge Creed Mr. Stedman stated that it was not, and had not been, his intention to leave the State. Judge Creed ordered him discharged.

Mr. Stedman was accompanied by his counsel, George Lee.

At the sheriff's office the business was short. Approaching the deputy sheriff who had been pointed out to him Mr. Stedman said:

"I am Arthur Stedman, for whom you have a mesne process writ, I believe, Mr. Sheriff. I desire to accept service on that writ."

Then accompanied by the sheriff, counsel and Mr. Lee they went to arrange a hearing before Judge Creed.

The writ is returnable the first Monday in December, after which Mr. Carver, representing Miss Curtis, says he will file a declaration setting forth in detail the charges of broken promise of marriage which Miss Curtis alleges.

INSPECTORS OF POLICE NAMED IN BIG SHAKEUP

A big shakeup among the police inspectors, sergeants and patrolmen assigned to the bureau of criminal investigation at police headquarters took place today, when many of the partnerships were broken and the detectives were assigned to travel new districts with new men.

Chief Inspector John R. Mosiare, who is in charge of the bureau, has given no reason for the changes.

The most surprising name in the announcement of the transfers of Inspectors Morris Woof and George Patterson. The former has been shifted from the water front to the North Station and the latter from the West End to the "Bronx," the district from Roxbury to the Dedham line.

Inspector Walter Murphy, who for a number of years on the North Station, will hereafter take care of the West End, with Detective Sergeant Patrick O'Connell of the South End. Inspector Dorsey, O'Neil's old partner in the South End has been assigned to the business district with Inspector Thomas Hussey.

Inspectors Thomas Towle and John Mc-Carthy, both Boston men, who have been attached to the bureau but a short time, go to the South End. McCarthy will be replaced in the bureau by Inspector Ernest Johnson, John Grady, Sergeant John Mitchell and Inspector James Eagan have been ordered to the Water front.

The work assigned has been augmented by a new man, Benjamin Alexander, and Detective James H. Clarke, who has formerly been assistant in the "rogues gallery."

NO WEDDING BELLS

or Interviewing Some of 57 Would-Be Brides

Did you ever interview four or five women who wanted to marry you if you didn't, you'll be interested in this novel story.

It is the story of a man who under the name of "Good Intentions" wrote a letter to the AMERICAN seeking to become acquainted with a middle-aged woman object, matrimony. He received fifty-seven letters in reply and from them chose five for further investigation. And he found—

Of the five letters he chose I found but two worth while. One of each was a woman willing to share life's burdens with one who has no money for love. I said so, was that I am discouraged.

"I was bashful when I touched the button at the home of the first lady, but when the door opened and she welcomed me my timidity passed. It was hard to tell who I was, but she understood me readily that she made it easy for me. We got along swimmingly. Till suddenly she broke in a tone that sent a chill over me: 'I shall be cold I've not felt warm since.'

"You must know, sir, that I am not yet divorced from my first husband. He ran away with another man's wife, and I shall never expect to him again. Tears of self-pity filled her eyes, and I felt only sympathy. This seemed to hearten her, for she continued:

"'If I am to marry you, I must have a divorce, and I thought you could help me.' My sympathy for her so overwhelmed me that I choked. She continued:

"'I shall not trouble you. In love with any other woman?' I shook my head. And then something that she would be unwilling more. I rose and took my leave, promising to return in a few days.

"I have not yet returned to see the lady.

The next candidate was a younger woman, whom I met by appointment in a hotel, and in the reception room as we sat in the hotel. When we were alone she also read me her charges' letters and turning out the lights. They are so much alike. Finally she proceeded to question me as to my income and finally asked: 'Do you smoke?'

I resolutely told her I would not smoke her. Yes, I said I admitted that I smoked a good deal, but would be willing to give up my wife.

"I have not yet returned to see the lady.

STRANGE CONTRADICTIONS IN DR. DUDLEY'S LIFE, SAYS CONSTANCE WILLIAMS

Brilliant Physician, Athlete, and of Good Family, Now Charged With Murder.

By CONSTANCE WILLIAMS.

What sort of a man is this Dr. Dudley? Is it possible? I've been asked again and again since the Sullivan mystery fascinated New England.

And some of the questioners, without waiting for an answer, go on to say what they think of Dr. Dudley—their hypothesis as to what manner of man he is.

In the first place it is necessary to remember that Dr. Dudley has been four times arrested in connection with this case, or rather that four forces have been made against him. When he was first taken into custody in Boston, in connection with Miss Pelletier, the charge was a technical one and was not pressed to be pressed to trial. As soon as necessary information came, the charge was changed and he was held as a "fugitive from justice."

On that charge he was taken back to Maine—and it should be noted that he waived extradition, when he might have made a good fight, in Maine, he was finally charged with malpractice, and on that charge was arraigned, waived examination and was held in heavy bail—which bail was promptly furnished by his loyal friends.

Now he has been arrested on a charge of murder.

Lionel E. Dudley was born and grew up near Houlton, Me., far away to college. He went to Colby. But first he had become friends with a boy named Bernard Archibald, and they played side by side on the Ricker Institute football team. At Colby Dudley went to Colby, Archibald entered Bowdoin. And here another coincidence takes the lives of these two men, for at Colby Dr. Dudley entered the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity, and at Bowdoin, Archibald entered the same organization.

Dr. Lionel E. Dudley, in uniform of football player when he was active in athletics at Colby College.

FAMED AS QUARTERBACK.

It is this same Bernard Archibald whose life has run so close to Dudley's, who is now proving to be a young physician as the most serious charge in the law's records.

From Colby, Dr. Dudley went to Columbia Medical School, and there in 1910 received the medical degree.

At Colby, Dudley had played on the college football team and was known as the best quarterback Colby had had. Since leaving college he has kept up his athletics to a remarkable extent. He is a crack shot, and one of the stories testifying to his physical prowess is that on a certain occasion, when his horse shied on to the sidewalk and balked there, he lifted the animal almost bodily back into the roadway.

Dr. Dudley married one of the most beautiful women in that section. Before they had two children before she secured a divorce five years ago, she is now living in Caribou with her children.

In person Dr. Dudley is of medium height, but with broad shoulders and an athletic figure. In connection with his reputed great physical strength, it is interesting to remember that on the trip back to Maine from Boston, Dr. Dudley was handcuffed by the officers in charge.

LARGE, FRANK EYES.

Dr. Dudley is of light complexion, and wears his hair rapidly in front. His head is pear-shaped, round at the top and tapering down to a pointed chin. His ears are remarkably low on his neck, indicating a mental ability that is borne out by his professional reputation as an able practitioner. His eyes are steady, large, frank and calm, and his mouth, though indicating a somewhat plastic character, by its regularity and is a weak one. His chin protrudes slightly.

There then is the picture of Dr. Dudley from his authenticated interview, from his life history, and from the actions as they are established, we can vision the man himself.

A rather brilliant young physician, an athlete still possessing great muscular power, a lover of sports, of horses, automobiles and hunting, a strong personality, a hearty, rough and ready manner of speech, a man of good blood and with a respected life behind him, a man with a host of friends among the best folk of Aroostook County. This is Dr. Lionel E. Dudley—charged with murder.

POISON IN SULLIVAN GIRL'S BODY

the Pelletier house far exceeded that in the jail, where Frank and Gertrude Pelletier were seen as the autopsy progressed.

Two doctors, Dr. Dudley and one Dr. Pelletier, who was an assistant at the Pelletier home and the secret did not crop out in the witness' testimony, have not had a word to their grips and vanished.

The Pelletiers live in a house where the Sullivans lived when they were in the town, behind the car lines. Mrs. Hermann Martin gave one of the first views in the case to Dyke reporters when she said she saw automobile parking in the yard in the rear at midnight on September 4. Katherine Mullen, the Sullivan maid, says Mildred died at 11 o'clock that night in the Pelletier house, that she was dressed in a pink and white cotton dress, was wrapped in a fur coat prepared for the cross fire trip and was all ready at midnight in an automobile for burial.

It is now hinted that Mrs. Martin not only heard but got up from bed and saw the machine and that she was questioned by the police before the body to the hurriedly made grave on the North Road, not far away on the off side of the hill.

After Dr. Dudley, Alice Pelletier and Kate Mullen had been arrested in Boston and held here in heavy bonds for the alleged part in a criminal abortion, passengers who were in the same compartment of the steerage with Miss Pelletier on the voyage from Halifax heard for treatment of illegal treatment. Mrs. Martin moved away from the Pelletier house. A few days later Mrs. Martin herself moved in. They were fairly well dressed.

SMUGGLED IN DICTAGRAPH.

One went to Barker & McKay's grocery and provision store in the village and bought groceries and soap and a bright coal hod. The other went to Raleigh White's and loaded enough furniture to make them comfortable. Then they bought dishes and pans at the five and ten cent store.

They stocked their larder and cooked their meals and troubled not soon their presence was forgotten. It is now known that the Pelletiers were observed, they smuggled dictagraphs to the important rooms and the wires run to their flat with the Pelletier dictagraph. The dictagraphs were heard in the Pelletier flat. It was unbroken vigil, one was always on the alert. Every whisper that floor was noted and both ears are also said to have been used.

It is now reported that the detectives caught enough to supply the State with sufficient ammunition to go to Kate Mullen and obtain a confession that her parents had been unfaithful to make, and when finally was brought about by the advice of the priest, of the little French settlement of Wallagrass on the southern line.

But the chief value of the stenograph notes at the inquest, it is learned to be the manner in which it corroborates the Michaud girl's confession by members of the Pelletier household. Dr. Dudley and Alice Pelletier are said to have been caught in contradictions at the Pelletier house by the mechanical "ears."

It would be learned that a separate census clerk will figure in the government exhibits in the case.

This sheet will have been cashed by Dr. Dudley after the disappearance of Mildred Sloyan from the Pelletier home.

Among the witnesses recently summoned by the State to Monteith are those from the town of Dr. Dudley is also said to have been a frequent visitor at the home of Miss Pelletier, who was an assistant at the Pelletier home and the secret did not crop out in the witness' testimony, have not had a word to their grips and vanished.

Acute Articular Rheumatism

Relieved By Anti-Kamnia Tablets

The exact cause of rheumatism is uncertain, though it is generally believed to be due to an excess of uric acid in the blood. It may be also said with equal truth that no remedy has been found which is a specific for this disease. In fact the literature of rheumatism shows that there is no drug for drugs which have not been given a trial. In the search for relief it was but a step that a certain drug has been found which will relieve almost all, others have found the same remedy to be a chief element in treatment, physicians however agree that every method of treatment be aided by the administration of some remedy to relieve the pain and ease the nervous system and Dr. W. S. Schoffeld discusses the subject in thousands of practitioners when he says that Anti-Kamnia Tablets should be given preference over all other remedies in this class of disease on account of their safety. These tablets are to be purchased in every drug store in compliance with national and all laws. Ask for Anti-Kamnia Tablets.

MITCHELL HOME AFTER BUYING $5,000,000 DYES

William A. Mitchell, agent of the Massachusetts Cotton Mills of this city, has returned to Lowell after a trip to Europe, where he purchased over $5,000,000 worth of dye stuffs to be used in the cotton business in the United States.

His trip will have an important bearing on the cotton industry in the United States as dye stuff is necessary in the production of cotton, and most of the output has to be imported from Europe.

The trip was made with the knowledge of all the countries at war and he was allowed to pass from one country to another with freedom. This action was taken by the foreign governments so that the manufacturing of cotton in the United States could continue on normal lines.

Mr. Mitchell made the trip to Europe and purchased the dye stuffs in the Rhine valley as a representative of the National Cotton Manufacturers Cotton Association of the United States.

The dye stuffs as soon as purchased were sent to Rotterdam, where they were put aboard the steamship Minneapolis, a fine ship and was chartered by the United States Cotton Manufacturers and sailed under the United States flag and registry. The steamer Matinicus has arrived in New York with its valuable cargo.

"The United States will soon have a reign of prosperity unprecedented in history," declared Mr. Mitchell soon after his arrival home.

"All men of trade should figure in this prosperity and every American citizen should share in the prosperity.

"In Belgium I saw at least 500,000 destitute citizens. They are being cared for as well as possible under the conditions of strife. In Frankfort on October 12 there were at least 50,000 wounded German soldiers. These men had been sent back from the front.

"Berlin is a deserted city. The hotels have but few guests and the big stores are idle. Traffic through the city is at a standstill, as even motor trucks which run back and forth to the front during these trucks and automobiles carry provisions and ammunition and bring the wounded."

Submarines Use Cape Cod Canal

The Prairie, flagship of the submarine flotilla of the third division of the Atlantic fleet, sailed from the Charlestown navy yard today with the new submarine K-5 and K-6. She will proceed to the Cape Cod Canal through the Cape Cod Canal. The submarines are the first to pass through the Cape waterway.

RESERVE BANK IN BOSTON OPEN; AIDS BUSINESS

Federal reserve banks opened in Boston and elsewhere over American area of country today.

Treasury banks of Nos. 101 and 3015 organized with capital of $4,000,000, and reserves of $14,000,000, which in time years will probably increase to $20,000,000. It has to do business for national banks of New England, member banks, and later will become a clearing house for checks.

Throughout the United States there are last October twenty-eight authorized capital of $100,750,000.

It means as much probably to business to all its branches as anything which has ever happened, not only in this country, but all over the world, for the great American republic is the richest of nations and has embarked upon a new financial policy which will be felt wherever cups are raised or goods are made or sold.

MAKES UP THE BANK.

Nine directors will govern the Boston bank, that being the number also for each of the others. The Boston directors are: Edwin S. Hunt, of Manchester, N. H., C. D. Sanford of Andgeport, Ct., and Thomas P. Beal of Boston, representing banking interests; Alvin W. Krech of Washburn of Worcester, E. H. Morse of Dover, N. H., and Jeremiah Smith, jr., of Boston, representing commercial and industrial interests. Chas. H. Hood, Boston, and Frank W. Hale, jr., of Beaumont, Tex., representing agricultural interests. Adolph C. Miller of San Francisco, H. A. Gardner of Boston, members of the Federal Reserve Board.

The head of the Boston bank is Alfred L. Aiken, formerly president of the First National Bank of Worcester, Mass. Mr. Aiken has been associated with the organization of the Federal Reserve Board and has been deeply engaged in the details of the reorganization of the currency system of the United States. He is a native and resident of Worcester, Mass., and is 50 years of age. He graduated from Harvard university in 1886 and began his business career in the First National Bank of Boston, with which he remained for seven years. He then became associated with the Worcester Bank and Trust company, of which he was president for 10 years. He was also president of the Worcester Clearing House association and a director of the Worcester Board of Trade. He is married and has two children.

MAKES CLEVER GUESS.

It is reported at Washington to-night officials that while the new banks will be ready for business in operation today that about $100,000,000 in currency will be required. Secretary McAdoo said he had no information to-night as to the amount of currency deposited with the banks, but it is estimated that from $70,000,000 to $80,000,000 will be sent to New York and Boston.

Alfred L. Aiken, governor of the Boston Federal Reserve bank, is a native of Worcester, Mass., and is 50 years old. He graduated from Harvard university in 1886 and began his business career in the First National Bank of Boston. FEAR LOST EVERETT GIRL OF FIFTEEN IS VICTIM OF "SLAVERS"

Hildred Parker, fifteen-year-old Everett girl, who is strangely missing

A strange man who was seen prowling near the home of fifteen-year-old Hildred Parker of No. 3 Chatham road, Everett, who mysteriously disappeared Saturday night, was today sought by the Everett police in the belief that he might be able to throw some light on the girl's fate.

The missing girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron M. Parker, fear she has fallen into the hands of "white slavers."

The girl disappeared while on her way home from the store of Miss Parker said of the mysterious stranger who had approached a number of girls Saturday evening and scrutinized their closely. The police think this man may know something of Hildred's whereabouts.

There are many unusual circumstances in the case. The manner in which the girl has suddenly dropped out of sight parallels the case of Eleanor Arlin of Brookline, who was last seen on her way to mail a letter last January.

WAS ON WAY HOME.

Hildred was employed in a Everett square store. She left Saturday night for her home.

In the company of Miss Ida Howard, a chum employed in the same store, Miss Parker walked as far as Union street. There the two girls parted and that is the last heard or seen of Miss Parker.

The girl's father, becoming anxious, went to look for his daughter when she did not reach home at 9:30. A search proved fruitless and he notified the police.

The Everett police have questioned Miss Howard and believe she knows nothing of her friend's disappearance.

Mr. Parker and his wife, who is not Hildred's step-mother, are distracted. They say Hildred had no male friends or sweetheart and that there had been no trouble at home. According to all reports, Miss Parker was a home, home-loving, domestic sort of girl, who never went out evenings.

HAS LESS THAN A DOLLAR.

Robbery could not have been a motive for the girl had less than a dollar in her possession when accosted by the strange man. When seen today at her home, the girl's step-mother said:

"I haven't the slightest idea as to what could have befallen Hildred unless she has been carried away against her will by unscrupulous men. She certainly would have communicated with us unless prevented from so doing.

"She had disappeared as completely as if the earth had opened and swallowed her up. Hildred had a vacation last summer. I remember, when she lost herself for a few moments here in the house. She thought she was in a certain place and when she came to herself again, was standing in a different spot from where she thought she was. This might have happened to her on her way home from the store Saturday night.

There was a strange man prowling about here right before supper. Some of the children stepped into the alley way beside the house and were approached by a tall man wearing a hat several sizes too small for him. He scrutinized the children closely. One of my girls spoke to him and said, 'What's on your head?' When he heard this, the children say, he turned and ran out of the alley and into the street. That was the last we saw of him. So when the children were returning, as is their custom on Saturday evenings, from a trip to the store where Hildred was employed.

NEVER HAD A BEAU."

"Hildred was very fond of her home and of her brothers and sisters. She was a great help to me in caring for the younger children. She never had a beau, and was too young to be interested in the fellows.

"She came home to supper Saturday night as usual, and seemed in the best of spirits. She even refused to accompany a girl-chum home after supper because she knew I would be lonesome without her. After supper she was. She was rather a quiet girl, and long for her years, quite thought she looked eighteen or nineteen.

The father is nearly insane over the continued absence and the uncertainty of her fate. He is of the opinion that she must have been taken away by white-slavers.

Jane S. Bradford Kills Herself by Gas in New York

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Mrs. Jane Stanes Bradford, one of the well-known New England fourth and a native of Lynn, Mass., at one time a woman of wealth, killed herself with illuminating gas at No. 344 Central Park West, this city, early today. With the idea of taking in roomers, but when some came and became acquainted, according to her friends.

Mrs. Bradford had a widow and grown daughter, Mrs. Alice Bradford, who died at her home in Wellesley Hills, Mass., in 1910. It was announced that the Philadelphian was said to be worth a great deal of money, but recently efforts to get her estate had resulted in nothing. Mrs. Bradford is survived by her wife. The story was told to Coroner Healy by Mrs. Gertrude Fowler, Mrs. Bradford's housekeeper and friend. According to the latter, Mrs. Bradford had been despondent for some time. Yesterday she was in a particularly gloomy mood. She told the housekeeper that she would not be home at her usual time, but would not say where she was going.

Mrs. Fowler, alarmed, went to the elevator and was told by the attendant that Mrs. Bradford had left the house. Returning to her apartment, she found the door locked. Breaking it in, she found Mrs. Bradford dead.

Girl in Ill Health Attempts Suicide

Rose Weinstein, twenty, tried to suffocate herself in the Cambridge home where she was employed as a domestic, at 3 Dana street today. She found ill health and she was contracting tuberculosis. The girl, when home to-day at 10 Vernon street, Roxbury, is in the Cambridge Hospital. Police said she will recover. She was employed by the family of Mrs. Harris Gladstone, 19 Dana street, Cambridge.

The girl left a note to her employer, begging pardon for the crime she was about to commit. She wrote: "What's the use of living and being a sufferer?" There was also a note in her room.

FOUR SLAYERS ARE SENTENCED TO LIFE TERMS

Four murderers were sentenced today to state prison for life by Judge Sanderson in the criminal session of the Superior court at Salem. All four, through counsel, changed their pleas of guilty and begged for leniency. They are George LeClerc of Peabody, Hedros Takvorian, Garabed Harbarian and Jean Arabajian, all of Lawrence.

The four men were to have been tried in the present session on indictments for murder in the first degree. One capital case remains to be disposed of, that of Joseph Arria and Gaetano Barbale, indicted for the murder of Gaetano Barbale, Mrs. Barbale's husband.

LeClerc, one of the four sentenced to life imprisonment, shot and killed twenty-year-old sweetheart, Pearl Frost and her employer, Walter P. Hills, at the Hills farm in Peabody last April. The other three—Takvorian, Barbarian and Avdanian—murdered John Shahian, a Malden jewelry salesman, in the American house at Lawrence last February. They afterwards dismembered the body and hid it in the woods at Andover.

Sousa Delights Many by Concert at the Colonial

John Philip Sousa gave a concert in the Colonial Theatre last evening. The house was packed. The program was a typical Sousa one, consisting of nine parts Sousa to one part other composers. The public would have been disappointed if it been otherwise.

Sousa's music makes a direct popular appeal. It is written for a brass band and is pretty good brass band music. The effectiveness of "Stars and Stripes Forever" would not be nearly so great upon a symphony orchestra as when played with the trombones, cornets and piccolos lined up along the footlights pouring the audience with brazen melody.

All the old Sousa marches were played as encores and such fine old pieces as "King Cotton," "Manhattan Beach" and "El Capitan" were welcome to the ear.

Sousa's beard has lost its pristine blackness, but his glances are white as ever and he leads his own marches with the airy of nonchalance of yore. The most interesting of his novelties is "Impressions at the Movies" which is really entertaining description, and a band arrangement of "Get Out and Get Under" which is truly humorous.

Notables at Funeral of Father Wholey

Cardinal O'Connell, Bishop Anderson, Mayor Curley and many other priests attended the funeral today of Rev. Dennis J. Wholey, P. R., vastor of St. Joseph's Church, Roxbury. The services were held in the church which was filled. At 8 o'clock mass was celebrated for the children of the Florida and parochial schools by Rev. T. J. Fahey. After the mass the children viewed the remains, which had been lying in state since yesterday. At 10 o'clock there was a solemn high mass. The celebrant was Monsignor Edward J. Moriarty, and the deacon, Monsignor P. J. Supple; subdeacon, Rev. Thomas L. Flanagan of St. Joseph's Church, Medford; master of ceremonies, Rev. Thomas J. Golding of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Jamaica Plain. Monsignor Supple delivered the eulogy. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery at Lawrence.

FEDERAL LEAGUE REPORTED TO HAVE OFFERED $10,000 CONTRACT TO HANK GOWDY

TWO ALL-STAR BOSTON PIN MATCHES ON

Bowling League Matches Tonight

AMATEUR BOSTON PIN—A. B. C. at B. A. A.; Dudley at Colonial; Winthrop Y. C. vs. City at Dudley alleys.

MYSTIC VALLEY CLUB—Kernwood at Towanda; Medford at Newtonville.

CORPORATION—Four matches at Littlefield's alleys.

CITY HALL—Three matches at the New Boston alleys.

LOUIS CIGAR—Four matches at the Arch street alleys.

CALEDONIAN—Four matches at Littlefield's alleys.

I. O. O. F.—Five matches at the Adams square alleys.

GREATER BOSTON B. OF P.—Deane Winthrop at Eagle; Cradock at King Solomon.

CORNER STONE—Four matches at the Brunswick alleys.

PORE RIVER—Two matches at the Columbian alleys, Quincy.

N. Y., N. H. & H.—At the Summer street alleys.

HOUSE—At the Carruth alleys.

HOOD RUBBER—At the Red Dragon alleys.

FIELD & COWLES LADIES'—Six matches at Littlefield's alleys.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S — Two matches at the New Boston alleys.

CATHOLIC UNION—Team 6 vs. Team 10.

THE bowling season has reached the stage where high scores and records come in bunches. With the real cold weather setting in, the pinners are paying more attention to the alleys and naturally getting better results.

Another thing quite noticeable is that the leaders are not having the walk their own way, as was the case last season. The trainers are beginning to get down to business and, one by one, many of the pinsters are getting into their grip on first places.

COLONIAL and Dudley will clash in the big match of the Amateur Boston League at the former alleys, although much interest is also attached to the meeting between the Arlington Boat Club and the B. A. A. on the Unicorn alleys.

Colonial is leading the field, having lost but one point in twelve. Dudley is down in the race, but has been bowling very well and may be expected to take a brace any time now.

The third match will bring together the Winthrop Yacht Club and City Club at Dudley alleys.

JUDGING by their work in the opening matches, Towanda and Kernwood should furnish some very brainclass bowling when they meet tonight on the lanes of the former club. Towanda came through the initial meeting with a clean slate, while Kernwood dropped only one point.

JACK TAYLOR of the Chauncy City League team and "Buck" Dervin of the Winthrop Suburban League quintet are carded to meet in the first decade of a twenty-string match this evening.

CITY Clerks and Assessors first team, occupants of first and second places in the City Hall League, will look hearts at the New Boston alleys this evening. Assessors must win, four points to take the lead away from the Clerks.

THE Y. M. C. A. League is scheduled to open its season tonight at the Bowdoin Wharf alleys. Eight teams will take part in the league.

SANTA MARIA is moving along fast in the city league. Santa Maria is now on the heels of Mt. Benedict. The Seventh district has a lead of but one point.

THE race for the leadership in the Newton League is tightening up. At least six of the eight teams are still in the running, and Garden City tied Moosup for first place while Riverside, Bosco, Hood, Hanscom, Wellesley and Newton are not far behind.

EVER since its defeat at the hands of Osgood, the athletic team of the Forestry League has been practicing with the hope of getting even. Now that the season is over, for both leagues of bowlers, it is expected that the Forestry League will make a strong effort to get back into the running next winter.

FORD and Home are locked up in the Ford Leaguers.

CITY Blake & Knowles League has a match tonight on the Adriatic alleys.

ELMER WEEDEN, anchor of the Washington team, is one of the best bowlers of that type in the league. Of 9, League, as his high record, he will testify, and his record of a score of over 100 for the season, 100 consecutive matches to date is superb and to boot, he is only a good chance to improve this further.

Alward and Massie for Mississippi settle down during spells of work as the chief factors that account for the high standing of their team.

FRIDAY—K. O. Brown vs. Bull Cassidy at New York; Joe Jeanette vs. Bill Watkins at New York.

SATURDAY—Grover Hayes vs. Jack Denny at Brooklyn.

By RINGSIDE.

JOE MANDOT, the crack Southern lightweight, and Milburn (Young) Saylor, the Indianapolis Tornado, are ready for their twelve-round battle at the Atlas Club tomorrow night. Reports from the camps of the two fighters carry the news that both boys are in the best of condition and fit for the battle of a ten-round limit.

From all sides comes the word that the most promoters have produced one of the big ringside classes of the year. Mandot and Saylor are among the leaders of their class and the fact that both are trained cautiously for this battle should mean that it will not be the stop to a bout with Freddy Welsh Johnny Kilbane makes it look as though Mandot will see a finishing fight.

SAYLOR is particularly anxious to get matters over Mandot in order to get another crack at Welsh. Saylor still always believe that he could have won the decision from the Briton at Worcester some two years ago. The referee called the bout a tool and awarded the bout to Welsh, but afterwards he said to friends that he did not see the punch or where it landed.

MANDOT will arrive here today accompanied by his manager, Tommy Walsh. Saylor has been in some time today with his manager, Ray Bronger, the man with the genial smile, who was quite a lightweight boxer not so long ago.

The referee question will be kept open until the parties from both camps settle the matter.

"I LOOK for a tough fight with Saylor," Mandot says. "but I expect to win. In my first battle with the Indianapolis Kid at New Orleans I came out a winner. We met again at Indianapolis, but no verdict was given. Still I feel that I had there been a decision I would have won it."

MANDOT admits that Saylor is a hard fellow to box and one of street, Brockton.

Bike Stars Try Out for 6-Day Grind

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—A series of races tonight served to try out the riders which the six-day bicycle races will start tomorrow at one minute after midnight in Madison Square Garden. A four-lap handicap for nine men was won by Fred Taylor of Newark, with Harry Kaiser of New York second. The International match race was won by the American team, composed of Joe Fogler and Clarke, who defeated the Italian team, Moretti and Verri. A special professional race was won by Taylor, Kaiser, Fred Taylor took the three-mile amateur, and Gordon Wright of Australia captured the five-mile professional. Bobby Walthour won the five-mile professional motor-paced race in 8.08 2-5.

Willie Houck Holds Young Ahearn Even

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 14.—Willie Houck, the Lancaster middleweight, battled to a six-round draw with Young Ahearn of New York at the Athletic Club tonight. Neither boxer got away to a bad start and the show much in the early rounds, but a aggressive work in the last three sessions earned him a draw with the New Yorker.

The most dangerous men in the lightweight class. Saylor has a deadly wallop and if a fellow can keep clear of his right hand he stands a good chance to win. Mandot declared that he is going to do his best with Saylor to win as quickly as possible and as he is boxing better than ever his feels certain of winning.

THREE preliminary bouts, everyone of which give evidence of furnishing some animated scrapping, is on tap. The Joe Morgan-Young Smiley bout is attracting unusual attention, for the latter has not appeared for this meeting.

MISS "TWIN" SULLIVAN will re-enter the ring tonight after an absence of some time. The Cambridge veteran will beat Bobby McDonald in a six-round bout at Glace Bay, Nova Scotia. Incidentally, it will be Mike's first battle under the guidance of a manager. All during his long ring career, Mike has never had a mentor, but for some reason or another his affairs are now in charge of Walter D. Blaney, a Bostonian.

"KNOCKOUT" BROWN will take on Young Dyson, Wednesday night at the Rhode Island A. C. The one-time Broadway idol is beginning to find himself again, having won his last seven battles. In the vernacular of "Dumb Man" Morgan he looks like the boy who beat Ad Wolgast and Abe Attell.

THE St. Patrick's T. A. Society will conduct an open amateur boxing meet at Clark Hall, Brockton, on Friday evening. Bouts will be contested in the 115, 125 and 145-pound and novice classes. Entries close Wednesday and should be sent to Dennis J. Driscoll, No. 26 Ward

A. A. U. HEADS GATHER FOR BIG SESSION

NEW YORK, Nov. 14—Every division of the Amateur Athletic Union is represented here for the annual meeting of the union today.

They have already approved all but two of the track records and also recommended all the other record performances on the list. This includes swimming, rope climbing, relay, hurdling, weights and light running.

The committee held over the record of 6 1-5s. for the 60-yard indoor run credited to H. G. Carroll of the Indiana State Normal School during the Middle Atlantic championships at Pittsburgh, Pa., last January, and threw out the claim of E. W. Pittsbrook, New Orleans, of 33 2-5s. for a 100-yard walk on the grounds of its being an unusual distance.

The marks of 21 1-4s. for 220 yards by George Parker, Olympic A. C., Fresno, Cal., October 2, 1914, and 9 7-8s. for 100 yards by H. P. Drew, University of Southern California, at Berkeley, Cal., March 28, 1914, were the most prominent accepted by the committee as equalling the existing records.

The record committee adopted a resolution, which probably will be accepted by the national body, to the effect that in future no records will be approved for other than standard distances or events included in the Amateur Athletic Union championships, but otherwise they will be accredited as noteworthy performances.

It is expected that President Alfred G. Lill, Jr., of Boston, will be re-elected. Only one candidate, Frederick W. Rubien, president of the Metropolitan Association, has been mentioned as a possible successor to the late James E. Sullivan as secretary-treasurer.

BASEBALL NOTES

ACCORDING TO BILL FISHER, who used to be Cubist, he will stay with Boston for the next three years from the independent league.

THE FORMER BROOKLYN CATCHER is said to have been sold for $5,000 by Cutting to his old club, the Tinker outfit.

ACCORDING TO THE FEDS FISHER played a deal for the Brooklyn Club. Before he signed a big league contract.

MARTY BERGHAMMER, THE CINCINNATI pitcher who signed to the pittsburgh is going to be the busiest man in the league, if he and Charles Hanna as a package.

JOHN MCGRAW HIGHLY DOESN'T believe in speed in the players of the field and is in the habit of saying so, "Fifty Grass."

HERZY PROBABLY WEARS SOMEONE Plates that had he knew them.

THE PHILLIES GAVE TWO INFIELDERS a good chance for Baseball, Football and Football Club of the Pacific Coast League.

JOHNNY BATES, SENSATIONAL outfielder with the Seattle team, which has been playing in the Coast League for some time, has been sold to the Boston Braves. He is considered the "find" of the league.

THE FEDS THINK WALTER JOHNSON might encourage other big leaguers to go to the Federal organization. The Federal King is making all the time to get him from the plate.

JOHN WILLIAM HUGHES MADE A REMARKABLE showing in the Pacific Coast league last season. He was twenty-four games and lost only seven.

JOHN K. TENER WILL MAKE HIS HOME in Washington this Winter, but the National League Headquarters will remain in New York.

GEORGE TYLER, THE PHILLIES' STAR pitcher, has been signed by Manager Moran as a coach for the Baltimore.

JOE HEISLING MAY RETIRE FROM THE game next Spring, although he made good as manager and pitcher for the Baltimore Club of the Canadian League. C. Reilly has secured him as boss of the League.

THE PHILADELPHIA NATIONALS WILL start for their training camp in St. Petersburg, Fla., the latter part of February. They will make the trip by water from New York.

THE PHILLIES HAVE AGREED TO play the Athletics a five-game series in Philadelphia before the season opens.

THE VANCOUVER CLUB HAS RELEASED a number of its high-salaried players, including Cottrell, Bernell, Carr and Hunt, and will rely on youngsters in their places next season.

JOHNNY KLING HAS BEEN THOUGHT OF considerably and is willing to insert his noodoon for the diamond if some one will make him an offer.

KLING SAYS HE FAVORS ORGANIZED baseball, but that he has no reckoning grudge against the Feds if they chose to sign him.

Burns in Mat Bout.

Cyclone Burns and Emil Steiglitz, the Bavarian wrestler, will meet in a finish, catch-as-catch-can match at the Grand Opera House, Thursday night.

GOLF NOTES

By MR. PUTT

Golfers locally will be interested in the play of one of the Yale backfield in the coming Harvard-Yale contest. F. Ey. Ainsworth, a halfback, is a member of the Woodland G. C. and looked like a coming golfer before he became interested in the more strenuous sport.

Pinehurst, N. C., has gotten out the Winter schedule, and from the attractive program arranged it looks like a big golfing season ever known is anticipated.

Thus far the figures for numbers on the various local courses for the first half of November have been in line with previous records. One reason for this has been the fine weather on Saturdays and Sundays. With just a few more pleasant days the month will set up a record that will defy comparison.

Francis Ouimet prefers playing golf to anything else, even passing up several opportunities to witness some of the big football games as the guest of one or more of his admirers.

Thanksgiving Day is the next date of any importance for golf players when the usual holiday cups and the "turkey" trophies will be offered the golfing fraternity. Every story or thing when it set the "turkey" date as a football player, and what he likes in weight is made up by his speed and splendid judgment.

No better man could be named to represent the Bay State in golf than M. C. Crosby, president of the Chestnut Hill G. C. and a member of Braeburn. Mr. Crosby is a great stickler on rules and believes in living up to the letter of them. However, he does not lose the good sportsmanship side of the game by being overtechnical, and as a matter of fact I have never heard of his calling a penalty on any opponent.

Cornell May Cut the Rowing Course

ITHACA, Nov. 16—Cornell professors, favoring the shortening of the varsity rowing course at Poughkeepsie from four to three miles, have directed the committee on student affairs to give the matter serious consideration and take it up with the officers of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association.

The question of shorter varsity course was taken up at the last meeting of the faculty, and it developed that a large number of men favored a three-mile course instead of a four-mile course. Coach Charles E. Courtney has favored a three-mile course for many years.

MACKINLAY'S U.O.B. SCOTCH WHISKY GUARANTEED 10 YEARS OLD BOTTLED IN SCOTLAND

GRAND CIRCUIT SEASON PROVES A BIG SUCCESS

The Grand Circuit season, which has just closed, was the most successful and the most sensational in the long and honorable history of the harness game.

The racing world went wild a decade or so ago when Maud S. trotted a mile in 2:09¾. During the past season 400 heats were trotted in time better than the once time awe-inspiring mark of Maud S. The average time for 408 heats in trots was 2:09 4-5; the average for 353 pacing heats was 2:06 7-10, and the grand average for both classes was 2:08 36-100.

The fastest trotting average for a single meet was 2:07 7-10 for eighteen heats in Syracuse, N. Y. The fastest average for pacing was established in Kalamazoo, Mich., when twenty-nine heats were paced for a 2:05 1-5 average.

The biggest money winner of the year was Peter Volo, the marvelous five-year-old trotter, who won $25,669. The biggest pacing winner was King Cole Junior, with $13,750.

Tommy Murphy, the whirlwind reinsman, smashed most of the world records by winning $90,931 during the season with a string of thirty-four horses. W. E. Cox, with twenty-two horses, was second and "Doc" Gears, with fifteen on his string, was third.

Peter the Great was the best sire, his colts and daughters won $38,155.

Here is the record covering the different meetings, showing heats trotted and paced and the average time:

Place.	Trotting.	Average.	Pacing.	Average.
Cleveland	50	2:09 2-5	37	2:07 2-5
Detroit	52	2:08	39	2:07 2-5
Grand Rapids	22	2:08 9-10	22	2:05 1-5
Kalamazoo	8	2:08	9	2:05
Pittsburgh	32	2:11 2-5	32	2:07½
Readville	72	2:08 9-10	72	2:06 3-5
Syracuse	18	2:07 7-10	17	2:06 4-5
Toledo	12	2:08	11	2:06 3-5
Detroit	50	2:11½	34	2:07 2-5
Lexington	60	2:08 1-5	54	2:06 4-5
Lexington	45	2:08 1-5	36	2:06

Four hundred and eight heats trotted in an average of 2:09 4-5.

Three hundred and fifty-three heats paced in an average of 2:06 7-10.

ROSIN FOR LEAKS.

Here is a little dodge that may on occasions save the motorist considerable trouble. If there is a crack in a pipe or tank, or even in the radiator and no soldering equipment is at hand, common rosin, melted and run over the leak to a depth of a quarter of an inch will serve temporarily to stop the gap. If a little more permanent job is desired, a bit of leather placed over the hole before running the rosin makes a workmanlike job of it.

New Green Plays Ready for Syracuse

HANOVER, N. H. Nov. 16.—Dartmouth returned from the Quaker meeting with five new wearers of the "D," Cannon, Comiskey, Child, Perry and Redfield. Spears, Curtis and Ghee, with old aches revived, will need a week's rest.

Murdock's was pretty well smashed up, but both he and Whitney will be in condition with the others for the Syracuse game. Captain Whitney's leg was badly bruised.

In criticising Saturday's game the coaches are pleased with the wing defence against the forward pass.

Milmore and Gerrish were weaker in this department than against Tufts. Pushing and slow starting of the backs in the first half also brought errors.

Practice will be directed this week against Syracuse formations, and in perfecting new plays reserved for the Orange.

Coach Randall will diagnose the Syracuse attack and aid in preparing a defence.

Up to Michigan to Agree to 1915 Game at Harvard

If Harvard and the University of Michigan are to meet again on the gridiron next Fall, it is up to the Wolverine management.

The Harvard authorities are ready to tender Michigan a contract to appear in the Stadium next season, probably on October 30, but buck on a counter proposition from Ann Arbor to go West in 1916.

At present this difference is the only one now existing between the two managements, and but for the difficulty Michigan would have signed for a reappearance in Cambridge next year immediately after the game here last month.

Ann Arbor folks think that their college is deserving of such recognition at Harvard that home and home relations are arranged and consequently are now endeavoring to convince the Harvard management that their team must "Hurry Up" Yost's team in Ann Arbor or Detroit on October 29, 1916. Michigan, located as it is beyond the pale of the Western conference teams, must seek in the East for games of strong calibre. Among those who Yost has met abroad are Syracuse, Cornell and Pennsylvania. Harvard has been willing to meet their Western rivals on their home and home basis.

Without doubt, Michigan will avail itself of a chance to come to Cambridge next season for the receipts and advertising in such a meeting and let the plans for 1916 take care of themselves.

First Class Game for Green Next Week

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 16.—Dartmouth's first freshman-sophomore football game will be staged on the Oval, November 24, as planned by the Athletic Council. The elevens will be coached and captained by Spears, '17, and Eadie, '18. Varsity material is eligible for the contest. The outcome looks all 1917 on paper, for the sophomores have eight men who have played in letter games.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Eighteen teams, made up of the world's leading bicycle riders, started a fast session after midnight in the annual six-day cycle race at the Madison Square Garden.

As heretofore, the contest will be on 142 hours' duration, but this year the leaders, at the conclusion of the 141st hour, will spurt the final sixty minutes in a series of sprints, during which the team making the greatest number of points by finishing at intervals of fifteen laps, will be declared the winner of the first money, prize of $1,500.

Five other teams will receive cash prizes according to their point standing at the expiration of the time limit, which will be at 10:00 p. m. Saturday.

Some of the European riders who took part in this event in former years have been either killed or crippled in the war which is now waging on the European continent, but many familiar names are among the thirty-six competitors for the snake up the eighteen teams this year.

These include Walthour, Moran, Fogler and the Hedell brothers, all American riders who either have won two championships, and but for the difficulty Michigan would have signed for a reappearance in Cambridge next year immediately after the game here last month.

Harvard Red Cross Squad Is Praised

Harvard has a little Red Cross Society all its own, says the Harvard Crimson, referring to the football hospital list which at times has enough stars enumerated to make a cracking good team. Says the Crimson:

Noting the commendable interest taken these days in the work of field hospitals and ambulance corps, the Harvard Red Cross volunteers medical supervision of the Harvard football squad. Under the direction of Dr. Arthur Dudley Bevan, a week and a half ago there was established a hospital corps, which, so far, has had little or no work to do coaching! Too often, however, the service has been called into play for the second squad, the careful vigilance and skill of Dr. Bevan, Dr. Soley and their assistants have already borne out hopefully of respect. Within a fortnight, it is hoped, the corps will be looked. Long, valuable assets toward the football team's efficiency. It has already been of more value than that. Following the Princeton game, for example, when the hospital was filled with casualties, the team seats the efficacy of the corps in an entirely new light, and personal conditions. To the efficient members of our medical corps all honor is due.

HARVARD-YALE GAME WINNER STILL HARD TO NAME, SAYS CAMP

By WALTER CAMP.

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Nov. 16.—There was a fairy tale started something over a year ago to the effect that the rule-makers must give a team some extra downs inside the 25-yard line, or scoreless games would frequently result.

Those who circulated this contended that no attack was known that could get over the goal line when the ball was within their 25-yard zone, and his defensive backs in position.

Those who strongly maintained this position would do well to ponder upon the scores of some ten games played by prominent teams on Saturday, for in those ten games the losers made no less than 70 points, while the winners amassed a total of 324, or the average scoring in these games was something over 39 points to the game.

TIGER PLAYS HELPED YALE.

Early in the season this column predicted that the from legislation to make scoring easier would not be long before we might be wishing to modify the rule, but the outcomes in that remarkable compensating law, in football that is always forcing the attack to renewed efforts of ingenuity, and that is the study and improvement of defence that increases rapidly, partly through knowledge and partly through intention in attempts to match up the attack.

This was well exemplified Saturday in the Yale-Princeton game. No team has developed the lateral passing game with an equal degree of skill as Yale, and yet the Princeton defence studied and planned to meet this kind of thing and was very nearly effective, so much so that the actual gains from it alone would not have won had not Yale taken advantage in her turn of the fact that Princeton was spreading out to cover the end run and so while still keeping the threat turned her second most into the break left in Princeton's line.

PLAYS SOLVED TOO LATE.

Finally Yale added a whipping forward pass to the lateral threat of still longer lateral throwing that put a finishing touch to the attack, but as events proved it came too late, for Princeton, dazed and confused by the complications of Yale's attack on the New Haven men, through three periods, suddenly found an attack of their own which exceeded more than anything else since modern football existed in unanswerable spirit and with true Tiger pluck came back for two earned touchdowns to the satisfaction of having scored the Yale status into most apotheosed position.

But there were other remarkable games played on Saturday that showed that we have now a football game that has well nigh reached the highest point in furnishing two hours of the most entertainment that the sport has ever produced.

Take the Cornell-Michigan game for example. In the old days a lead of 13 to 9 would have been regarded as probably the safest one, or at least a lead that might only be bare-ly overcome.

NOTHING SURE IN MODERN GAME.

For instance, two games stand out in bold relief, one a Yale-Princeton game, where the former just won out after being led by two scores, and the other a Penn-Cornell contest of like result in favor of Penn, but the final victory was only a point margin.

Now in the Cornell-Michigan game Saturday, in spite of Michigan's lead of thirteen, the Ithicans in the end fairly routed the Westerners no less than 28 to 13.

Down at Annapolis, at the end of the first half, Colby had the midshipmen apparently defeated with the score standing 21 to 0, and yet the Navy came back and finally won by 31 to 21.

What is a safe lead in the modern game? Nobody knows, but in three separate games on Saturday it was proven that two touchdowns are by no means enough.

And still one more point, there is no possible way of playing the game safe so as to hold a moderate lead once secured against a team that has courage and pluck and any sort of an attack.

THE HARVARD-YALE GAME.

Now as to the shift in prospects caused by another week's developments they are very marked and exceedingly important. The Army has improved its probable lead over the navy, mainly through its sturdier defense, but also by the shiftiness of Oliphant and McGwan in Saturday's contest, when the navy was finding lots of trouble in stopping Colby.

Penn's chances against Cornell have been brought down to the very lowest point by her own poor work against Dartmouth and Cornell's remarkable attack through Barrett and Phillipi against Michigan.

The Harvard-Yale outlook took on an added shade of mystery, for at the end of the third quarter of the Yale-Princeton game Yale's stock was of still longer lateral throwing that put a finishing touch to the attack, but it was proved too late, for Princeton, dazed and confused by the complications of Yale's attack on the New Haven men, through three periods, suddenly found an attack of their own which exceeded more than anything else since modern football existed in unanswerable spirit and with true Tiger pluck came back for two earned touchdowns to the satisfaction of having scored the Yale status into most apotheosed position.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 16.—The All-Star Americans and Nationals closed their series here, the former winning, 5 to 4, and evening the series, each taking two games. Bill Lanes pitched for each team.

YALE WORRIED OVER OUTCOME OF "BIG" GAME

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 16.—Much as they rejoiced in the victory over Princeton on the football field, Yale men were evidently sorely disappointed and not a little worried over the entirely unlooked for reversal of fifth fortunes in the last period of the contest, when Princeton came back with a rush that swept even the regulars before it after they had finished back into the strife.

Dr. Bull, the famous Yale football coach and authority, said:

We had things our own way while the regular team was playing, together and we took too much for granted in trying so many substitutes even to save the first string men for the Harvard game Saturday. The excessive number of substitutions not only broke up the smooth play of Yale, but gave Princeton a start that was hard to break in even by getting the regulars back into their places. As soon as one team gets started forward and the other backward it takes a time to stop the abnormalism of it. We will have no reason to make a mistake similar to that made against Harvard, and I feel that our chances for the championship are not hurt by this game.

None of the other 101 enthusiasts would talk. Frank Hinkey, the Yale coach, drew back into his shell the moment the question was asked.

Captain Hailey, the regular end of the Princeton team, said:

I think we ought to have won the game, but we are not feeling as gloomy over it as we might have for we have proved that a Princeton team is never beaten until the last chance is gone.

I wish we could play Yale over again now that we know what we could do, but we came here just too late. It is no use trying to steal credit from Yale, but they had a mighty fine team, but not many people will give us credit for what we really have on the strength of what we have shown. I have no opinion on the comparative strength of Harvard and Yale, but I prefer not to publish that.

Casey, Exeter Star, to Enter Harvard

Edward Casey of Saints, who captained the Exeter football eleven which beat Andover, 18 to 7, Saturday, will enter Harvard next fall instead of Princeton. The reason is that "Ned" Mallon and Billy Murray, two former Natick High and Andover players, who were his teammates at Natick High are at Harvard.

Earl Colby Elected Captain at Cushing

ASHBURNHAM, Nov. 16.—Earl Colby, '16, of Allerton, S. H., has been unanimously elected captain of next years Cushing Academy football team. He has played guard on the eleven for the past three years and filled the position with credit to himself and value to the team. In many of the games he was called back to carry the ball, and his opponents found him a runner hard to stop.

Burns Wins in 13th from Kid Herman

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 16.—Frankie Burns, the Jersey City bantam, won from Kid Herman, the local boy.

Red Walsh, Herman's manager, threw in the sponge when the gong sounded for the thirteenth round. Herman had taken an awful beating about the body from Burns, and was unable to go further without being knocked out. Many blows to the stomach had weakened him.

Famous Old Track Sold at Sheepshead

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The historical old Sheepshead Bay race track has been sold, and where once the bang-tails disported the bang-bangs will now have their day, for the course is to be transformed into a huge motordrome for automobile and motorcycle races.

The price paid is reported as $2,200,000, and the Coney Island Jockey Club, owners of the property, took six months to decide that the day of thoroughbred racing had passed, and that they might as well sell at this high figure.

The tract embraces 450 acres of land, and the motordromes project is said to have been financed under the direction of an official of the National City Bank.

Report Eddie Plank Will Join Forces with the Federals

HANOVER, Pa., Nov. 16.—Eddie Plank, baseball's greatest southpaw, will report to the Chicago Federals according to a rumor here. The report comes from a man who is close to the old Athletic warhorse, on whom Connie Mack recently asked waivers in conjunction with Chief Bender and Jack Coombs.

Arthur Irwin, the scout for the New York Americans, was here for several days and went to Gettysburg to talk business with the Gowns southpaw in an effort to secure him for Frank Farrell's team. Irwin departed for home saying that any statement about Plank's future would have to come from the latter.

Harry Davis, Connie Mack's right hand man, is also in Gettysburg on a visit to Plank, but says that his visit is purely personal, although there is also a report current here that Davis will also sign with the Feds in a managerial capacity.

HARVARD MEN BUSY ON YEAR'S HOCKEY PLANS

Harvard will unquestionably be conspicuous in the hockey outlook for the coming season.

The success for a good team are dependent largely on the ability of the coach, but especially a hockey team, even with the unquestionable ice sport, but last Winter, although Harvard had a good team, the players were back on the pole there was no longer the puck to win two games from Yale and Princeton.

This year, when a new forward has left base to be found, the object of Coleman is very busy to see very good material is coming to the front, and the chances of the Harvard to the championship are very bright. Hopkins, H. C. Morgan, Lesley, P. H. Wood, W. A. Wheeler and W. A. Willetts being the best in this way while the following men for appendicitis or M. D. Phillips, H. Blatz to work into first class form for the game. Coach Fitzpatrick has left for Montreal, to try to draw from last year's second and freshman teams for their material.

Besides the usual Intercollegiate series which will be played, a game has been arranged to be played with Cornell, Montreal, Connecticut Agricultural College, Dartmouth, Princeton, Williams, Amherst and Wesleyan will be played with Boston College, Boston University, Tufts, Holy Cross and Brown. The dates of the games have not been announced.

Welsh Recovering from Football Hurt

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—"Iron" Welsh, quarterback of the Carlisle Indians, who was carried from the field in the football game with Notre Dame Saturday, had a restful night and is resting easily today. His condition continued to be encouraging and it is expected that he will be able to resume work in a few days. Welsh's injury consisted of a severe concussion of the brain.

Two Boston College Stars Out of Game

Boston College's forces lost its greatest backfield man and its quarterback today in preparation for the game with Holy Cross at Holy Cross University, at University Heights.

Despite the hard game and bitter fight which Boston College put up against Holy Cross, Saturday, in good condition, Captain Harry Riley, who played his first game for a year, and Wells, made half his showings and is probably out of the game for the season.

Quinn Bradley is another man who will not play against the cross. He received a bad injury to his knee Saturday.

Fullback Tompkins Chosen to Lead Williams Eleven

WILLIAMSTOWN, Nov. 16.—At the banquet given to the Williams football team over Amos Pettengill's restaurant tonight Fullback Tompkins was chosen captain for next season.

Tompkins succeeds the veteran at the position. Tompkins, who comes from Paoli, Pa., City, where he was born, has been a star in football, baseball and track. He has been a member of the Williams varsity for the past two years and has played in every game. He is the middle of the line and is a hard Dependable player.

He has starred in every game, is a brilliant offensive player, and the doubtful line plunger. Williams has boasted in years. Tompkins has a personality of a leader and is a hard, faithful worker.

Repose, the Crown of Beauty

Phyllis Neilson-Terry Gives Some Hints on the Acquirement of Grace

"No woman was intended to be awkward." So says the gifted daughter of the famous Ellen Terry.

The talented Phyllis Neilson-Terry who is now making her first tour of this country.

By MAUDE MILLER

"REPOSE is most attractive when it is attained naturally, but it can be managed through environment, too!" So says Miss Phyllis Terry, who is a daughter of the famous Ellen Terry, and who has had environment as well as heredity for her backing.

"There is nothing so beautiful as repose, because to me it is a mystifying kind of beauty. Any one can be active, and in these days of dancing, when it seems as though one simply must dance because everybody else is doing it, it is almost a relief to get away from it and do something that every one hasn't begun to think about.

"When you see a woman absolutely relaxed, and there are very few who really do relax, and know how to go about it properly, you find a novelty among womankind. You notice her first because she is different, and then you begin to notice points of beauty about her.

"There is a whole-souled something about her appearance, a lack of pose, an absence of trying to ape the impossible, which is restful because it is natural, and it is beautiful. In a beautiful statue you never see restless motion; it is most disquieting to any one who appreciates the natural to find a woman who is always putting her different charms on parade; her best points forward, as it were.

"Of course it is the Junoesque, majestic type of woman who looks most beautiful in repose. It is she who must make her outline of form count, for it is impossible for her to be graceful and quick without being grotesque. To the large woman belongs the wonderful heritage of deliberate action, and she must make the best of it.

"Beauty of repose is gained through adapting oneself to one's circumstances. After the mind has triumphed over the body in this respect one can begin to show repose in smaller things also. Be on the watch constantly for pointers. One can learn more by watching and imitating than in any other way. The hands and arms can be made to show this repose almost immediately.

"The lifting of an arm or hand can be made into a poem if one desires, and the very best way possible to study grace and poetry of motion is to practice the arm movements of aesthetic dancing. Afterward one may learn how the entire body can be made to move in harmony, each part attuned to another until all is a thing of exceeding grace and beauty.

"Aesthetic dancing is beautiful because it fosters just this grace of movement in women, it teaches them to be graceful first, and gradually they learn without extra application, how to be lissom and how to manage the body properly, and how to indicate repose in the very midst of movement. Or relaxation they may choose to use.

"The movements of the head are very important. It is important to know whether one's head falls immediately into a beautiful position or whether the neck angles are stiff and uncomfortable because they are not natural. The position of the head on a beautiful pair of shoulders is most important, the chin line should be studied and the eyes should be rolled up or dropped just as the position is most becoming.

"Be careful to have one's entire body doing the same thing at the same time, so that each beautiful line seems to be a part of the next. Contour is everything, and if one is not naturally graceful it is a duty to practice grace. A woman was never intended to be awkward, but she must help herself to the attainment of large things through the securing of little things that often seem at first without any importance at all."

gives natural beauty to skin and hair

There can be no comparison between a naturally beautiful complexion and one of the defects of which are covered up. Resinol Soap helps you to have the right kind of skin.

It is a delightfully pure soap, perfectly suited to everyday use in the toilet and bath. Yet to it are added gentle Resinol balsams. These stimulate the pores to healthy activity, allay irritations, and prevent or overcome the complexion defects which are so often caused by neglect, improper treatment, or the use of artificial aids to beauty.

Sold by all druggists. For sample free, write to Dept. 4-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOUR PARENTS ARE RIGHT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady of seventeen and am in love with a young man of nineteen. He asks me to go with him to a town ninety miles away to visit his relations. Do you think it is proper to go? My parents object, but would it be right for me to go if he should send for me later?

I feel as though I ought to go because my parents are so mean.

VERONICA H.

DON'T call your parents mean. They are very wise not to permit a young girl to go away with a boy on a visit to his relations. Please, please, my dear girl, obey them. You would be severely criticised if you made this trip and your parents wish to guard your reputation.

THE GIRL WHO LENDS A MAN MONEY.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty and went out with a young man of the same age for over a year. One day he told me he was short in money and asked me if I could do him a favor and lend him $1, which I did. It is now past two months and I have not heard from him since. I called him up on the phone and he told me he is busy just now and will call me up later, which he never did. I wrote to him twice and he does not answer my letters. Please advise what to do.

ANXIOUS READER.

WHEN a girl lends a man money she makes a bad bargain, for she seems to buy his self-respect and to mortgage his liking for her. Dorothy Dix wrote of this in the AMERICAN wisely and well recently. I am afraid you will not recover either friend or your dollar—but it is well spent if it teaches you how weak and contemptible he is. Just forget the dollar and the debtor.

YOUR PARENTS ARE YOUR NATURAL CONFIDANTS.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am true and much in love with a man of thirty-one whom I have recently met. He says we are to be married soon, but doesn't wish to tell my parents. Do you think it advisable to keep it secret from them? I doubt his love because of this.

E. C. P.

SECRET engagements are seldom advisable. Love should be proud and unafraid. Don't enter into an engagement of which you cannot tell your parents.

Her Husband's Widow

By EDMUND B. D'AUVERGNE

MRS. MELAS WANTS TO STOP ALL GOSSIP

MISS MELAS stooped for kisses and contemplated the tip of her nose itself. "This affair has been so much unpleasantness to you, I continue to it," she resumed, "Victor and I have got to chain each other just yet awhile we do, we shall go through another form of marriage just to quiet the gossips. There is no occasion for you to let him know that I told you, mine."

She looked anxiously at her companion.

Leslie shrugged her shoulders, and then shook her head. "I really can't promise you that," she said. "I may loved him. You cannot expect me to receive him on the old footing. I shall respect your secret so long as neither of you tries his other matrimonial ventures. I should advise you to prepare him by letting him know yourself that you have told me."

"He will be awfully wild with me," said Mrs. Melas doubtfully.

"I can imagine that. You can tell him that the girl he received will be very wild with him, also, and will most certainly never wish to see his face or hear his name again."

Leslie smoked herself. Her passionate vehemence might betray the secret within by the merest fluke this woman had not penetrated.

"Oh!" She rose abruptly and flung out her hands. "It's horrible. I never wish to hear anything more about it." She was aware of Mrs. Melas' downcast gaze. "I've no right to blame you, of course. You have acted very generously in defending your name and your Egyptian marriage I must leave to your own conscience."

Mrs. Melas rank a little. Unable to endure the cold glitter of those unwoman eyes a moment longer she swung round on her heel and walked swiftly into the Assyrian gallery toward the entrance. Half an hour later she was at Euston eagerly inquiring when the next train left for Scotland. It was starting in half an hour the same air as those people. She craved for the touch and sight of her child.

No need to stint herself now! She had a right to spend Claude's money. As she leaned back against the cushions of her first-class carriage she told herself that she ought to be unspeakably relieved at this wholly unforeseen conclusion.

Mrs. Melas had cut the Gordian knot of her difficulties, but had cut it with a sword that pierced her heart.

What a hypocrite the man had been! He had seemed to love her a little all the day, so generous, so chivalrous. No doubt he had a hundred excuses, she could easily believe it, for his Egyptian marriage had been more to the woman's making than his. He had was several years younger than he, and must have been a mere lad if he had married her against his will. It had taken place under strange conditions.

Well, she had every reason to be grateful for what that half Oriental woman had told her. Her own interest in all Jimmy's movements was assured. Yet oddly enough her head ached. She was a wife, she reminded herself, but it never occurs to him to make his whole meal upon it. It's among those who are the absolute rewards.

"The wisest man that ever lived, and the one who had the most experience with women, exclaimed Leslie, "declared that a contented mind was a continual feast. I'm not happy, but I'm not starving. I'm not going to be foolish enough to ask for more. I'm not going to be foolish enough to ask for more. I'm not going to be foolish enough to ask for more

STOCKS ON RISE, OPTIMISM NOW HOLDS MARKET

Reopening of various exchanges and curb markets is a long step towards resumption of business in the great stock exchanges. At no time since they closed has sentiment been so optimistic as it was this morning. Conditions in this country are believed to be approaching normal. A great factor in the beginning of banking business under the federal reserve system is the opening of reserves for credit accommodation of nearly $3,000,000,000 for the country as a whole and $1,000,000,000 for New England as a section, a something unheard of in any other section. Another factor is the decrease in foreign exchange rates progressively a day since the outbreak of war, in favor instead of a creditor towards the United States.

STOCKS ON THE RISE.

It is significant that prices for standard stocks showed rise in the unofficial markets. The advance in the one completed on New Street in New York is indicative that speculative sentiment is now buying. One banker says: "The most encouraging feature is the resumption of business by stock exchange securities. Investors are now in such shape that we can contemplate a reopening before long. There is reason for confidence and encouragement in the recent course of events."

BUSINESS IS BETTER.

Business in general is much better in this country, taking it as a whole. Beyond the Mississippi, high prices for grain and cotton are manifestly felt. In the Middle West trade has held up well during the darkest war period. In the manufacturing centres of the East an improvement is noted. Henry Clews & Company say:

"Why should not business go on smoothly and with increased confidence from one end of the land to the other, especially as we are provided with one crop worth an abundance of food for home use and for export and we also have the machinery for the manufacturing of all kinds of goods called for to meet the requirements of the gigantic war, which gives us virtually a monopoly in supplying all such needs at very remunerative prices?"

OPTIMISTICS.

American makers of munitions of war are doing a big business. Exports of cartridges, dynamite, gunpowder and firearms in September last totalled $306,886 more than in the same month in 1913.

American owners will take over a large German woolen mill at Passaic, N. J., and incorporate it as the Gera Woolen Mills, with a capital of $1,750,000.

A Pittsfield mill has received an order to turn out 100,000 yards of overcoating cloth to make overcoats for the French army.

Foreigners have placed orders for 150,000 yards of khaki woolens in this country, the goods to be made into army uniforms.

The mills of the United States Steel Corporation at Farrell, Pa., will soon increase operations to 75 per cent. of capacity. They have been running on a 30 per cent. basis.

An improvement in the volume of pig iron business is reported, but prices have not advanced.

A New York Stock Exchange seat has sold for $58,000, an advance of $3,000 from the price paid for one a few weeks ago.

Exports from the port of New York five days this week have showed an increase of $5,000,000 over the total for the corresponding period last week.

The French government is preparing to place in Chicago an order for 40,000 pairs of red trousers for its troops.

Representatives of the British army are negotiating to purchase 600 motor trucks for immediate delivery.

Re-equipment of the allies' cavalry is helping to make business good in this country. Agents will buy 5,000 horses in Idaho and 8,000 in Montana. The British government has placed in Cincinnati orders for 70,000 traces and 70,000 halters.

The past of the United States forecasts its unparalleled prosperity for the future. In sixty-four years its foreign commerce grew from $318,000,000 to $4,259,000,000 a year, and the per capita value of exports from $16.96 to $23.27.

There are 11,000,000 Americans with money in the savings banks and their deposits aggregate about $4,375,000,000. Most of the depositors are wage earners and they constitute the greatest army of capitalists in the world.

American merchandise shipped from New York to foreign lands last month was valued at $86,080,971, compared with a total of $82,622,932 for that month last year.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co., international bankers of New York, have reduced their rate on standing call loans from 6 per cent. to 5½ per cent.

One New York agent is filling foreign government orders for 60,000 army overcoats, 200,000 blankets and 100,000 sweaters.

The steel mills at Gary today put 5,000 men to work. They had been idle on the periods ranging from one week to three months. The mills will start turning out products in the largest tonnage of the year.

Real Value in Big Offer in Embroidery

When it comes to resembling real values New England women are second to none.

This is proven clearly by the big demand for the Embroidery Pattern Outfits now being offered by the AMERICAN.

Such an opportunity may not come again. The AMERICAN'S women readers seem to realize this fact.

Every Embroidery Outfit consists of over 200 hot iron transfer patterns of recent stylish London, Paris and New York designs, an all-wool hoop of special clasp design and ten skeins of embroidery silk and floss in assorted colors, together with a complete set of instructions on embroidery stitches, showing the beginner how to master this fascinating art.

And it requires only six coupons of consecutive dates clipped from the magazine page of the Evening AMERICAN with 48c and this splendid outfit is yours.

Late comers are certain to be disappointed, as this offer is good only till the supply arranged for (which is very limited) is exhausted.

Better inquire getting YOUR Outfit by clipping your first coupon today—NOW.

You will find the coupon and more details on the magazine page of this paper.

MOTOR NOTES

By J. C. KERRISON.

At a recent meeting held by the foremen of the various departments of the Federal Rubber Manufacturing Company a club was organized, to be known as the "Federal Rubber Goodfellowship Club," for the purpose of accumulating a fund for a good cheer fund into the hands of the needy at Christmas time.

The method of collection adopted is to distribute envelopes among employes on pay day, which are to be collected by the financial secretary. The money collected in this manner will be utilized in purchasing clothing, food, toys, etc., as the committee may decide, and this, together with whatever clothing and toys donated, will be distributed to needy homes a few days before Christmas.

In view of the fact that there will be no great annual automobile shows shown in the cities of London, Paris, Brussels and Berlin, interest in the big American shows in New York and Chicago next January has consequently increased to a large degree. Like many other lines of goods, the "made in America" automobile is practically the only new product and the prospective buyer can obtain, for barring importations from Italy there are very few improved cars than find their way to America.

With every prospect of a bigger and better show than ever before, manufacturers of cars and accessories are seeking more space in the Winter's shows than at any previous one.

There will be a meeting tonight of the automobile accessory dealers and garage men at 7.30 o'clock at the Quincy House, with the idea of perfecting a permanent and representative organization, and all dealers are invited to attend. George Brophy, president of the Massachusetts Automobile and Accessory Dealers' Association, the name by which the new organization will be known, will preside over the meeting.

Dean Sumner Will Speak Here Sunday

The Very Rev. Walter Taylor Sumner, D. D., chairman of the Chicago vice commission, will speak at a public meeting at Tremont Theatre, next Sunday afternoon, under the auspices of the Boston Equal Suffrage Association. Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard will also speak.

$353,559,049 COST OF CANAL, SAYS GOETHALS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Colonel George W. Goethals, Governor of the Panama Canal zone, in his annual report, shows that the canal's cost, including the current appropriation, now stands at $375,353,049.29. More than $374,000,000 was appropriated. Of that amount more than $12,000,000 was for fortifications.

"Work was continued during the year on the high level mortar batteries," the report states, "and by the close of the year the concrete work was practically completed.

As the construction of the canal proceeded to the point where it was at the time of completion of the first ship, the population of the zone steadily decreased. In June 1913, when the force employed on the canal was 29,673, compared with 42,259 at the close of the previous fiscal year.

Nagging Newsboys by Ordinance Is Pretty Small Business

It Is Being Tried in Several New England Cities and Towns—Brave Little Chaps, They Work Hard to Get a Start in Life and Generally Grow Up Into Useful Citizens

It takes all kinds of people to make a world—worse luck.

Think of nagging newsboys by ordinance.

Pretty small business, isn't it?

Yet they are trying to do it in quite a number of New England cities and towns.

The boys have long been compelled to take out a license and wear a number before they could do business on the streets.

They did not object to that, but they do object to the efforts now being made to prevent them crying their newspapers on the streets and to stop their selling papers at all in certain districts.

A merchant must advertise if he wants to sell his goods. The newsboy is just as much a merchant as any one who sells what people want to buy, and crying his papers is his only way to secure publicity.

When a merchant has an extra bargain he plunges in extra advertising. When the newsboy has a special piece of news he yells extra loud. That is all the difference, and both are after the profit they are rightfully entitled to.

It must be that some people look on the newsboy as a nuisance. HE IS NOT A NUISANCE. He is a brave little chap; working hard to get a start in life, and he generally grows up into a useful citizen.

A typical case is presented in Taunton. The Daily Gazette of that city sets forth the situation very ably in an editorial headed "Is It Fair?"

The editorial follows:

A little newsboy, struggling to help out the family exchequer by his hustling ability and winning manner of approaching people, succeeds in building up a good trade. His customers are accustomed to meet him at certain times and places. They know him, they like to deal with him. He is honest with them, and he holds his business in the face of fair competition with others in the same line of work.

Suddenly he is told that he must secure a license to ply his trade and wear a badge, which may be taken from him in case of misbehavior on the street. Well and good. He has no objection. He intends to behave himself and takes out his license in due form and continues to ply his trade.

Then one morning he is told that a new system is going into vogue. He is assigned a station, he is to be confined to limits beyond which he must not go, and when the station is assigned him by lot, he finds that he is far removed from his original point of trade. He is aloof from his regular customers. The little business which he has built up by industry and persistency, selling his papers in the face of bitter storm and cold at times, is wiped out. He cannot go beyond the confines of his post. His customers must seek him. If he goes beyond the limits arbitrarily fixed for him by the chief of police under the ordinance he is in danger of losing his license and being put out of business completely and also being taken into court and punished.

Was this result expected by the framers of the ordinance?

Messrs. Councilmen, some of you may have sold papers on the streets yourselves in the earlier days. You have all been pretty successful men since. How would you have liked it? Would you have considered similar conditions fair?

What do you think of it, citizens of Taunton?

Many of you buy your newspapers in such a manner that they are left at your door each night, but many more of you are accustomed to trade with the youngsters who sell on the street. You get accustomed to trading with one young man as you do with your butcher, your baker, your grocer. Perhaps you, also, are among those who sold papers yourself on the streets years ago. Looking back in the matter, how would you consider that section of the ordinance which places the little salesmen on stations, even though it may be argued that each week shall see a shift? Would you like to be shifted just as you had built up a good little trade in one spot for some other chap to come along and reap the fruits of your industry if you had been successful or to feel like surrendering his license if you had not succeeded and he found he could not?

The Gazette, in view of assurances preceding the passage of the present ordinance, does not believe that such conditions were intended, nor does it believe that even the warmest friends of the ordinance believed that it would result as it has at present.

It does not believe that there was one person in a hundred who ever found cause for complaint with the conduct of the local newsboys under the former regime. Once in a while some boy may have overstepped the mark of proper behavior. At that time there was law enough behind the police to enable them to discipline him properly and no newspaper man or newsdealer wants to employ a boy who makes himself a nuisance.

With the badge as a means of identification there is sufficient law under the city ordinances and State laws to control the little chaps if they become unruly, without designating where they can sell their wares.

The section of the ordinance assigning these boys to stations ought to be stricken out in the interest of fair play, not only to the newsboy but to the general public. There are mighty few, if any, other cities in Massachusetts which have gone to such petty extremes in such legislation.

The Council has done well to send the ordinance back to the committee for reconsideration. It has taken a logical step and one that ought to call for very careful consideration of the section which has been deemed unfair with an effort to make it more in line with square dealing.

There can be no question but that the Council will see that the matter is properly adjudicated along lines of equal opportunity to all concerned.

War Likely to Send the "Little Navy" Men in Congress Into Hiding

It appears altogether likely that the "Little Navy" gentlemen in the United States Congress will shortly be driven to the tall timber. This will be one result of the war in Europe. The alternative suggested by Republican leaders is a "larger navy" issue in the 1916 campaign.

A poll of the Senate and House Committee on Naval Affairs indicates that these committees are strongly in favor of a bigger and better navy. It will please New Englanders to know that all the committeemen from this section of the country stand for the kind of navy that ought to represent the land of Barry, Paul Jones, Farragut, Decatur and Macdonough.

It is entirely due to the failure of Congress to act in the matter that the American navy is today deplorably deficient in torpedo boat destroyers and submarines, and that the navy needs nearly 20,000 more men to properly man existing ships.

The General Board of the navy, of which Admiral Dewey is the head, has time and again urged the construction of four battleships a year. No Congress has ever authorized more than two in a twelvemonth. Two years ago the Democratic Congress authorized only one.

GARDNER DEMANDED FACTS.

Today, now pending, before the House Committee of the House, the resolution introduced by Congressman Augustus P. Gardner of Hamilton for a thorough Congressional investigation of the state of preparedness for war in this country.

No matter how they have stood in the past on the subject, most of the Naval Affairs committeemen now take the patriotic stand. Here is what some of them say about a bigger navy:

SENATOR LODGE:

I have always favored and have supported for many years every increase in the navy. At the present time I am satisfied that the navy needs increases in many directions and I shall do all in my power to secure these increases. If we can obtain, as we ought to obtain, an inquiry as to the state of our naval and military defences, I am certain that the people of the United States will insist on the liberal increases in the naval force which I am sure we ought to make.

SENATOR CARROLL S. PAGE, Republican, Vermont:

I confess that my views have undergone a material change regarding this matter, and I now believe that the best way to maintain peace is to continue the policy, for the present at least, of annually constructing two battleships.

SENATOR CHARLES F. JOHNSON, Democrat, Maine:

I favor the adoption of a definite plan as early as possible for the enlargement of the navy in such manner and to such an extent as to provide adequate defence for our commerce, the Panama Canal and our long coast line on two oceans. The navy will be our chief reliance in the event of war with any nation on the Eastern Hemisphere, and I am deeply impressed with the importance of making it adequate. No political considerations should have any influence in the matter; only the country's needs should be considered.

I do not believe the building of a large navy will become an issue in any campaign, because I think Congress will deal with the question in a broad patriotism, which will have the support of men of all parties.

REPRESENTATIVE ERNEST W. ROBERTS of Chelsea:

I am heartily in favor of increased naval construction. The lessons of the great world war thus far should not be overlooked. We have not enough torpedo craft—destroyers and submarines—and this defect should be especially looked into.

Of equal importance is the question of personnel. If we should go to war today we would be more than 19,000 men short of enough to man the war ships we now have. This is a deplorable state of affairs, and Congress should remedy it without delay. It takes time to educate a sailor to handle guns and operate a modern war ship.

REPRESENTATIVE PETER GOELET GERRY, Democrat, Rhode Island:

I am in favor of Congress increasing its naval building appropriation over that of the last session and of continuing its policy of the absolute necessity of constructing superdreadnoughts.

Senator Moses E. Clapp of Minnesota, Republican, agrees that we shall need larger naval appropriations but thinks "it will be a mistake to be swept into such a plan during the present hysteria."

Clapp is matched on the Democratic side by Senator Tillman of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Naval Committee, who sees "nothing that ought to make the United States go wild in building battleships or other naval craft."

MAY BE 1916 ISSUE.

"As chairman of the Senate Naval Committee," says Mr. Tillman, "I shall try to carry out the policy advised by our great President and our conscientious and alert Secretary of the Navy. Neither of these men, I am sure, will 'run amuck.' An efficient navy is what we need, not a larger one, for by the time the English and Germans get through sinking each other's ships we will have the largest navy in the world, anyhow, I think."

Senators Thornton of Louisiana and Chilton of West Virginia, Democrats, and Penrose of Pennsylvania and Smith of Michigan, Republicans, are bigger and better navy men.

Senator Penrose and Representative Browning of New Jersey declare that the larger navy will be a big issue in the presidential campaign of 1916 if the present Congress fails to respond to the present demands of the American people.

TWO SPIRITS

By LILLIAN LAUFERTY

TWO spirits dwell in me,
And one would sport through all life's golden day,
Nor suffer any pain at all, but be a child at play;
It wonders why should any hurt. It shuts its eyes to sorrow,
It would not see the grimmer things—its tasks are all tomorrow.
It chooses joyous comrades, and when their mirthtime ends
It flits along to playmates new and calls these wasters friends.
It would not grow—for growth means pain;
To pay life's debt it thinks is vain,
And it would quaff—and quaff again,
And hug as dearest treasure
The poison-cup called "Pleasure."

There are two souls in me,
And one would toil to some far-visioned height,
Nor spurn the bruising stones beneath, because they give it might.
It welcomes trial, smiles on pain and knows that past the grieving
It shall find growth and strength to grow beyond today's believing.
And should each budding friendship fail until life's daytime ends,
It still would strive for worthiness to win more worthy friends.
It longs to bring some gift to life,
For this it bravely smiles on strife,
And so it bears the pruning-knife,
Nor strives surcease to borrow
From kindly hand of sorrow.

There are two souls in me—
And I can choose which I shall be.
WHICH SHALL I PINION—WHICH SET FREE?

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

Boston's foundry and machine work is worth $12,971,641 annually?

This Is a Day of Wonders—and the Boston Transit Commission

In this day of great scientific achievement, when our national government has separated two continents and united two oceans, when the human voice, with all its wonderful inflection and tone, is so perfectly projected a thousand miles over an insensate copper wire that a man in Boston can recognize his friend's voice in Chicago, when we can make that intangible medium which is less than air convey our intelligible messages from one wireless station to another across an ocean, when we can take the wings of a bird and soar even above the flight of the eagle, when we can tunnel under a harbor without letting a drop of water into a hole, IT IS EXCEEDINGLY STRANGE THAT THE BOSTON TRANSIT COMMISSION CANNOT BUILD A LITTLE SECOND CLASS SUBWAY IN BOSTON WITHOUT SERIOUSLY DISCOMMODING TRAFFIC UPON THE SURFACE OF ONE OF THE MOST CONGESTED DISTRICTS IN THE WORLD.

More people pass through the South Station every day than through any other railroad station. Yet it is here that incompetence or indifference to the public convenience is manifesting itself.

When the Nawn Construction Company was digging the subway on Boylston street, the patience of the business men in that section of the city was taxed to the limit by the unnecessary condition in which Boylston street was kept for so long a period. Then the AMERICAN called the attention of the Transit Commission to its unreasonable complaisance with the contractor.

The AMERICAN blames the Transit Commission primarily for this state of affairs, and not the Nawn Construction Company. A private contracting company for the construction of public works is not an eleemosynary institution. It is human nature that the human beings who control it should extract the last farthing of profit which the public authorities will permit from its work.

The DUTY is upon the Rapid Transit Commission to see that the public is not unnecessarily inconvenienced.

Yet sometimes it is wise even for a private contracting company not to take too much advantage of a complaisant and house-broken commission. Public suspicion, when once aroused, is often unreasonable and difficult to allay. If there is profit in these contracts it would be well not to kill the goose that lays the golden eggs.

The Mother and the Job

Modern Economic Conditions Have Brought Up the Vital Question of Whether a Woman Must Choose Between Motherhood and Her Job

By DOROTHY DIX

In discussing the question of whether a board of education should dismiss women teachers from its force when they become mothers, which has become an issue in the great city of New York, it seems to me that the only real point at issue is how motherhood affects the teacher's efficiency.

If motherhood, as most of us believe, broadens a woman's sympathy, teaches her more patience and forbearance with children, and gives her an insight into child nature that no young girl or old maid can possibly have—if, in a word, motherhood gives a woman the touch of nature that makes her kin to every inarticulate, stumbling, groping little soul in her charge, then let the mother teacher be reinstated in her old job.

But if the mother teacher's thoughts and interests are centred on her own baby in her own home, so that she does her work half-heartedly and perfunctorily, and if she rushes through her tasks in the schoolroom to get back to her own cradle, then let her be dismissed.

The question that has been raised in this controversy is a most interesting one, for it involves a big economic problem that we have got to face in the near future, and that is whether children are to be a luxury confined to the very rich or the desperately poor. This would be a bad thing for the world, for it is the children who are reared in middle class homes that are the salvation of society.

Many thoughtful people who believe that motherhood should disbar a woman from teaching take the ground that the best interests of the home and the rights of the baby to be born are best served thereby.

They say that when the time comes that a baby is expected the husband should be able to allow his wife to leave her profession of teaching and take up the profession of motherhood in its fullest, finest and most comprehensive form. The man of the family should be able to support the home in comfort and give the woman the time and opportunity to devote her whole undivided interest, attention and care to her child.

Undoubtedly this is the ideal situation. The only difficulty is that it is impossible to always achieve the ideal, and to those who have the courage to look life in the eye as it is, instead of as it ought to be, it is perfectly apparent that the time is fast going by, if it has not already passed, when many men will be able to provide in such manner for their wives and children.

Already the marriage rate has been cut down enormously because men cannot afford to marry. It will go lower still unless we break away from the silly old convention that the only respectable way in which a woman can help her husband is by being a domestic servant to him.

Hundreds of thousands of young girls are fitting themselves to fill good paying situations in the commercial world. They want to marry and they want children, but the only way in which they can do this is by keeping on with their jobs after they are married, and helping to support as well as create a family. To forbid this is to doom them to celibacy or childlessness.

That a man is not able to make enough money to support a wife and children in idleness and luxury does not necessarily indicate that he is unfit to be a husband and father. Some of the finest, noblest, most intellectual men in the world lack the talent for money grubbing. These men have brains and brawn and high ideals to bequeath to their children, and it will be a distinct loss to society if they are doomed to remain childless because they can't alone and unaided support a family.

At any rate, most women have mothers or other female relatives who are amply able to care for a child competently, and such things exist as trained nurses and kindergartens and creches. Also the average professional women would not be away from her child more hours a day than the ordinary mother is away from hers in shopping and going to clubs and bridge whist parties and matinees.

The added comfort in living and the advantages that the wage-earning mother could give her children must likewise be taken into consideration. Certainly of two evils it is better that the mother should continue in her profession than that the children should be sent into the factory.

Modern economic conditions have brought strange new problems for us to solve, and none of them is more vital than this question of whether a woman must choose between motherhood and her job.
